Introduction

THE primary object of the publishers of the CANADIAN TRADE INDEX is to provide buyers and sellers of Canada and other countries with an authoritative directory of all products manufactured in Canada and the names of the firms making them. It includes a complete list of Canadian manufacturers having more than a local distribution for their products, irrespective of membership in the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. Approximately eight thousand firms are listed. The names and addresses of companies wholly-owned by the Crown are to be found in the alphabetical section.

This edition of the Index includes the following features: an alphabetical directory of over eight thousand Canadian manufacturers with addresses, branches, export representatives, trade marks and brands; a directory of Canadian manufacturers classified according to the products made; a directory of exporters of agricultural produce and allied lines; an export section giving details of Government services with a Foreword by The Honourable James A. MacKinnon, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa; an alphabetical list in French of the headings in the classified section with parallel English; an alphabetical list of Spanish (limited edition) of headings in the classified section with parallel English; an alphabetical list in Portuguese (limited edition) of headings in the classified section with parallel English.

As a result of wartime controls the manufacture of a number of civilian products has been restricted or discontinued. It was decided, however, to leave the question of listing these products to the decision of individual firms and it will be found that most of the classifications have been retained. These firms have the experience and equipment to manufacture and supply the products to domestic and export markets when industrial and trade controls are relaxed.

Owing to the detailed classification and the numerous advertisements, prospective purchasers are generally in a position to get in direct contact with manufacturers of the goods desired, but where information regarding specialized lines is required the gratuitous service of the Commercial Intelligence Department of the Association is offered. It is suggested that importers abroad should first communicate with Canadian Government Trade Commissioners in their respective territories. Their names are listed on pages 206 to 208 of the Export Section. Representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada are invited to call at the Head Office of the Association where they will be given every possible assistance.

The Index is kept up to date by an annual revision, and the past year has been spent in checking and revising names, addresses, and classifications. Each manufacturer is sent a revising form on which any changes in firm names or products are reported. Additional information is received from Government departments, mercantile reports, and our ten offices across Canada. Classifications are generally established by consultation with manufacturers and experts in various industries.

Following is a short summary of the various changes in the 1945 edition:

New Firms added	241	Small changes in firm name and address	371
Firms deleted	110	New classifications	80
Changes of name	96	Classifications deleted	56
Changes of address and location	216	Classifications changed	49

The publishers wish to thank all organizations, government departments, and the manufacturers who have so kindly aided by furnishing the information on which the book is based.

INDUSTRIAL experience and enterprise, combined with progressive management, good workmanship and adequate financial facilities, have enabled Canadian industry to establish one of the most successful of the Allies' massive efforts to overpower the Axis with more and better fighting equipment. The financial service of The Canadian Bank of Commerce was used extensively to put, and keep, Canadian industry at full blast.

Industries that want to keep going at full blast in the post-war period will find great aid in this Bank's progressive service.

For example:

Loans for the purchase of materials, to meet payrolls and to speed distribution.

Loans to steadily employed workers to relieve them of financial anxieties and thus to help maintain working efficiency.

Additional credit facilities in Letters of Credit, which place business transactions on a high and safe level at distant points, in Canada and abroad.

Accurately kept current deposit accounts for safeguarding funds and for convenient payment of bills, etc.

Speedy, low-cost collection services to effect prompt settlement of receivables.

Extensive, highly-experienced foreign trade departments and connections to aid the reconstruction and expansion of export and import business.

In Commerce there is Progress

CANADA'S WAY OF LIFE

50,000 MANUFACTURERS HAVE PROVED IT

BUSINESS springs from ideas, and nearly every creative idea is born in the brain of one man, free to exercise his personal initiative.

A partnership of capital, and individual ideas borne of initiative, results in the formation of a new manufacturing business.

This is Canada's way—the free way. Imperial Bank of Canada plays a definite part in financing the operations of Canadian Manufacturers and looks forward confidently to the post-war period when free men will do great things for civilization.

GENERAL OFFICE—TORONTO

The
Canadian Manufacturers' Association
Incorporated

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1902.

OBJECTS

The objects of the Association are to promote Canadian industries and to further the interests of Canadian manufacturers and exporters, and to render such services and assistance to the members of the Association, and to manufacturers and exporters generally, as the Association shall deem advisable from time to time.

SERVICES

In war most of the services listed below are more in demand than ever. War and war conditions have brought many new problems arising out of adapting the industrial system of the country to new production, locating new sources of raw materials and manufactured goods, finding new markets, complying with new regulations in existing markets, exchange control and import restrictions, employer and employee relations, shipping and insurance, legal and taxation difficulties, scientific and industrial research, priorities and control of materials.

Transportation Department— Deals with and watches developments in all matters affecting Transportation by Air, Highway, Inland Water, Ocean, Rail, Telegraph or Telephone. Acts for or advises members respecting Claims, Classifications, Contracts, Documents, Legislation, Rates, Regulations, Rules or Services pertaining to the transportation of Communications, Goods, Mail or Passengers. Supplies information on control of oil and gasoline.

Tariff Department— Interpretation of Canadian Customs Tariff; information in regard to tariffs of all civilized countries; questions of value for duty; assistance in Customs drawback claims and refunds; advice in regard to invoices; preparation of cases for the Tariff Board; assistance in the matter of needed tariff changes; advice on sales and excise tax problems. Supplies information on price control, export permits, trading with the enemy, import licensing requirements of other countries and foreign exchange control.

Insurance Department— Studies insurance legislation, including war risk insurance and bombardment insurance, gives confidential advice on the standing of insurance companies, information on group insurance and pension schemes, and co-operates with other organizations in fire prevention and insurance matters in general.

Legal Department— Maintains a watching brief on all Canadian legislation, receives copies of all Bills introduced in Federal and Provincial legislatures, studies the measures proposed, and assists the Legislation Committee in deciding and carrying out the policies of the Association. Deals with problems arising under the Income War Tax Act, the Excess Profits Tax Act and numerous regulations issued under the War Measures Act.

Commercial Intelligence Department— Information re articles made in Canada; names of manufacturers of articles; information re agencies and export connections; sources of supplies of raw materials; Government regulations re manufacturers; translations of foreign correspondence; classified lists of manufacturers; commercial statistics and trade information; commercial reports on overseas firms; priorities and controls; war restrictions on manufacturing; problems of war production.

The Trade Sections Department supplies a secretarial and organizing service to any group of manufacturers who may desire to organize along lines of production and for the purpose of dealing with common problems incidental to any trade.

Industrial Relations Department— Studies various questions arising out of relations between employers and employees. Among the more important of these are Workmen's Compensation, Old Age Pensions, Hours of Work, Unemployment Insurance, Conciliation and Arbitration of Industrial Disputes, Wages and Salaries Control, including Cost of Living Bonus, and Factory Legislation.

Publishing Department—The following publications are supplied to all members of the Association:

(a) "Industrial Canada" the official organ of the Association, which contains information compiled from the various Departments, and also commercial news of a general character.

(b) The Canadian Trade Index—This book contains a list of all the manufacturers in Canada, with the Goods which they make. It is distributed abroad through Government Trade Commissioners, Export Organizations and other agencies.

FEES

The Association is maintained by the fees paid by members. The fee in each case is determined by the number of employees. For further information please communicate with the Head Office—

ALGOMA STEEL CORPORATION LIMITED

ALGOMA QUALITY MEETS WORLD STANDARDS

Steel produced by Algoma is qualified by 40 years of use in Canadian industry to meet world standards. Its product is made to the specifications of Canadian engineers and metallurgists whose limits and tolerances are as fine as any in the world. Algoma is the foremost Canadian producer of railroad, structural and alloy steels. Algoma supplies a wide range of shapes and sections, in hundreds of grades of carbon and alloy steels, to domestic and export markets, for automobiles, buildings, bridges, agricultural implements, mining equipment, docks and drainage structures, household products, machinery, rails and railroad equipment, public utilities and for other products and uses.

ALLOY STEELS—
Pioneers in Canada of Alloy Steels in hot rolled sections, bars and billets. Specially suited to conditions demanding high tensile strength and shock resistance combined with reduced weight. Chromium, Nickel, Vanadium, Molybdenum, Copper, Manganese, Silicon, singly or in combination, can be supplied to S.A.E. or customers' specifications.

BILLETS—BLOOMS—SLABS—
Made of Algoma high-quality Steel for rerolling and forging. Supplied in Carbon and Alloy grades.

BILLETS AND BLOOMS in all squares from 2½"x2½" to 20" x 20" inclusive.

SLABS from 4" to 32" wide—any thickness 2" and over.

FORGED STEEL GRINDING BALLS—
Most up-to-date manufacturing methods guarantee uniform density . . . roundness . . . smoothness . . . maximum crushing efficiency . . . wearing quality. Accurate heat treatment assures hardness all the way through. Sizes; 2" to 5" inclusive.

GRINDING RODS—
Special high carbon grinding rods used by the mining industry throughout Canada. Complete range of sizes.

PIG IRON—
Algoma Machine Cast "PIGLETS" in all grades of FOUNDRY, MALLEABLE, BASIC IRON.

BLACK SHEETS AND TINPLATE.
The products of our new Sheet and Tinplate Mills are of the highest quality and are used by leading manufacturers.
Sheets: Hot Rolled, Hot Rolled Annealed, Tin Mill Black.
Tinplate: Coke Tinplate, Standard Finish.

RAILS—Standard and Mining—
Canadian, British and American Standard Sections to 130 lbs. per yard. A.S.C.E. Sections 12 lb. to 45 lb. inclusive.

RAIL FASTENINGS

Angle bars and 100% joints fitting all standard rail sections to 130 lbs. per yard. Fish plates for light rails.

Tieplates: "Lundie", "Sellers Anchor Bottom" and "Compression Bottom" designs, fitting all standard Rail sections.

REINFORCING BARS—

Of New Billet Open Hearth Steel. Round, square and twisted. Give strength and permanence to concrete construction.

SPRING STEELS—

Round, square, octagon and flat carbon or alloy bars for helical or elliptical springs.

STEEL BARS—

ALGOMA STEEL Supplies a Wide Range of

FLATS to	12"
ROUNDS to	4⅞"
SQUARES to	3"
OCTAGONS	13/16" and 1 3/16"

... the best safeguard
AGAINST LUBRICATION FAILURE, too

DE LAVAL Centrifugal Oil Purifiers protect power units from trouble from both of the chief enemies of good lubricating oil performance . . . water and dirt.

The ability of the De Laval Oil Purifiers to instantaneously remove by centrifugal force any water that might leak into the system is of vital importance because of the tendency of water to form an emulsion with oil. On board a ship a centrifugal purifier is the only practical means of eliminating such water — a fact of especial importance when the new, heavy types of Diesel lubricating oils are used. And in turbine lubricating systems, the continuous removal of water by a De Laval Purifier provides assurance that sludge formation will be minimized.

Protection from dirt is equally positive. A De Laval machine of proper capacity, operated on continuous by-pass, will purify the oil in circulation three to four times daily, insuring against excessive bearing wear. Write for details, mentioning type of power unit.

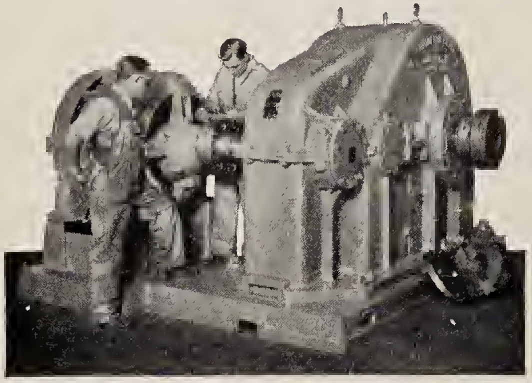
CUT GEARS

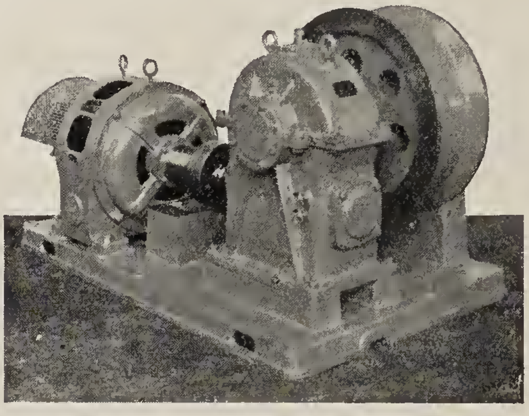
Made in Canada for 32 years

Speed Reducers

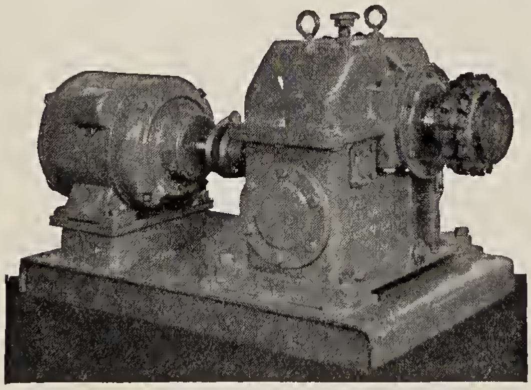
Used wherever High Speed Power is applied to Low Speed Use

Worm gear and helical gear units, in single and multiple reduction, are made in a wide range of sizes. Send for catalogue on either of these types, listing standard sizes, with power capacities and detail specifications. These are high grade, heavy duty gear drives, designed and rated for 24-hour continuous service. Ratios are available up to six thousand to one in simple, efficient, self-contained units.

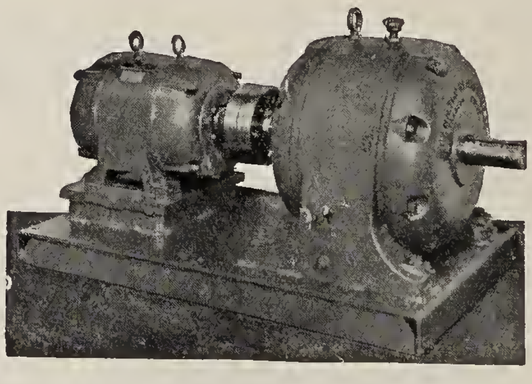




Integral motorized speed reducers and increasers, built as one self-contained unit, are made in a full range of sizes, in both worm gear and helical gear forms, in single and multiple reduction, to give almost any desired final speed. This construction offers advantages in freedom of arrangement.



We have extended our line of Double Reduction Worm units to quite large sizes. These have ratios ranging from about 60 up to 6000 to one. A catalogue covers this line in detail.



The Planetary type of speed reducer with shafts in line is now made for coupled connection, as shown, as well as in the original motorized form. A catalogue has been issued on each of these lines.

The Compensating Joint

Silent Chain Drives

The Hamilton-Ramsey silent chain (made in Canada) will operate at higher speeds and run smoother and with less wear than any competing chain because of the compensating rolling cam action in the patented Ramsey joint. Supplied in 3/8″ to 1-1/2″ pitch.

ROLDWELD Steel Spur Gears

This new electric-welded steel gear has a .45% C. forging-quality rim. It is long wearing and practically unbreakable. The cost is less than a steel casting, the strength is greater, and delivery can be made in a quarter of the time. See photo above.

Flexible Couplings

A full line of standard flexible couplings for both high speed and slow speed, the former illustrated here, are carried in stock. Larger sizes to order. We also stock small power flexible couplings down to fractional h.p. ratings. Send for coupling catalogue.

FOR MORE THAN A QUARTER OF A CENTURY...

- For more than a quarter of a century Canadian National Steamships has provided trustworthy and dependable service between Canada, Bermuda, the British West Indies, British Guiana and British Honduras. During this time an enviable reputation has been established with shippers and travellers.

Implementing the Canada-West Indies Trade Agreement, Canadian National's "Lady Liners" and freighters specially built for this service, have provided an improved channel for mutual trade. In peacetime the famed "Lady Liners" shared in popularizing Bermuda and the glamorous Caribbean with trade and pleasure travellers.

Following the outbreak of war, for two years Canadian National Steamships continued to serve its established routes. It was then assigned specific West Indian zones and was also allocated other ships to serve West Indies ports of call under zoning and shipping controls. In addition, ships seized or taken over by the Canadian Government were operated by Canadian National Steamships in service embracing the United Kingdom, Newfoundland, Labrador, Central and South America, West Indies and the Far East. Losses were sustained through enemy action and many acts of bravery and devotion to duty have been recognized by awards and decorations.

Canadian National Steamships looks back with pride over its quarter-century of intimate contact with Bermuda and the British West Indies. In spite of wartime conditions, agencies have been maintained at all ports of call and representatives welcome inquiries in regard to trade and transportation.

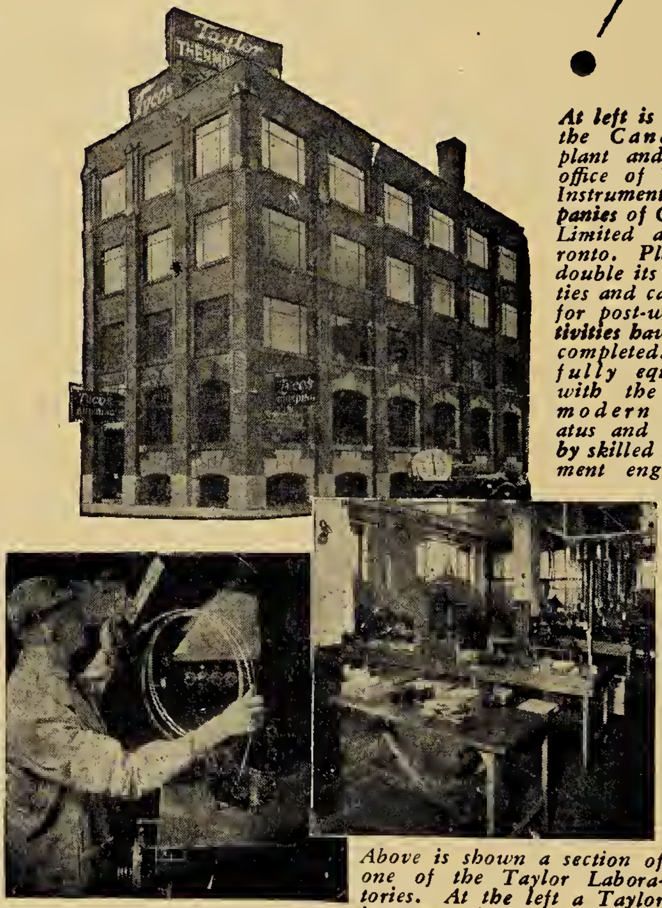
DON'T WORRY—

Taylor engineers will always take care of your control instrument problems!

Post-war planning for executives in the process industries involves problems of temperature, pressure and flow control . . . but don't let these worry you too much. Call in your Taylor field man and discuss your present and future processing problems with him. He knows the answers. He will tell you of new developments in the instrument field, which will provide short-cuts to new economies. He knows of new ways to maintain standards of quality and to increase plant efficiency. Place your control problems in his hands with confidence.

During this war, the Taylor organization has many new technical achievements to its credit. This experience will be brought to bear to provide you with the right indicating, recording and controlling instruments for temperatures, pressures and flows. Taylor Instrument Companies of Canada Limited, Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver.



At left is shown the Canadian plant and head office of Taylor Instrument Companies of Canada Limited at Toronto. Plans to double its facilities and capacity for post-war activities have been completed. It is fully equipped with the most modern apparatus and staffed by skilled instrument engineers.

3 PROCESSES

For Hot Rolled Pipe and Tubes

BUTTWELD Process — The simplest form of pipe construction for standard pipe requirements. Made in sizes from 1/8″ to 3″ diameter.

LAPWELD Process —A superior pipe that withstands greater strain and pressure. Recommended for sizes 2″ and over. Made from 1″ to 12″ diameter.

SEAMLESS Process — The strongest process offered. There are no welds in this pipe. Recommended for extreme pressures. Sizes 1/4″ to 6″ diameter.

A NEW PAGE-HERSEY PRODUCT

Our new, modern plant at Welland, Ontario, is now producing Cold Drawn Seamless Tubing; finished bright and shiny, or dark blue and smooth.

Hot finished tubes are processed here by cold drawing, to smaller diameters and lighter gauges for all mechanical and pressure tube requirements, such as—

Naval Boiler Tubes—Merchant Boiler Tubes and Still Tubes—Superheater Tubes—Heat Exchanger and Condenser Tubes—Evaporator Tubes.

Mechanical Tubes for easy fabrication, i.e.
Bomb Tail Tubes—Tubes for Tanks and Armoured Vehicles—Diamond Drill Tubes—Transformer Tubes—Tubes for Anti-Aircraft Guns and Aircraft Conveyor Tubes.

Tubes treated in the dark annealing furnace, are smooth and have a dark blue surface finish. Our bright annealing atmospheric controlled furnace turns out tubes with a mirror-like finish on both interior and exterior surfaces. These processes are far superior to box annealing.

PAPERS WITH A PURPOSE

The papers which bear the "R" Shield watermark have a mission in life. Each one endeavors, in its own niche, to provide a medium most suitable and as fine as possible for the use intended.

For each department of commercial correspondence and records you will find an appropriate Rolland paper. In the purchase of paper for your particular requirements, to specify a Rolland product will always assure a sheet that is best suited to the type of work you have in hand.

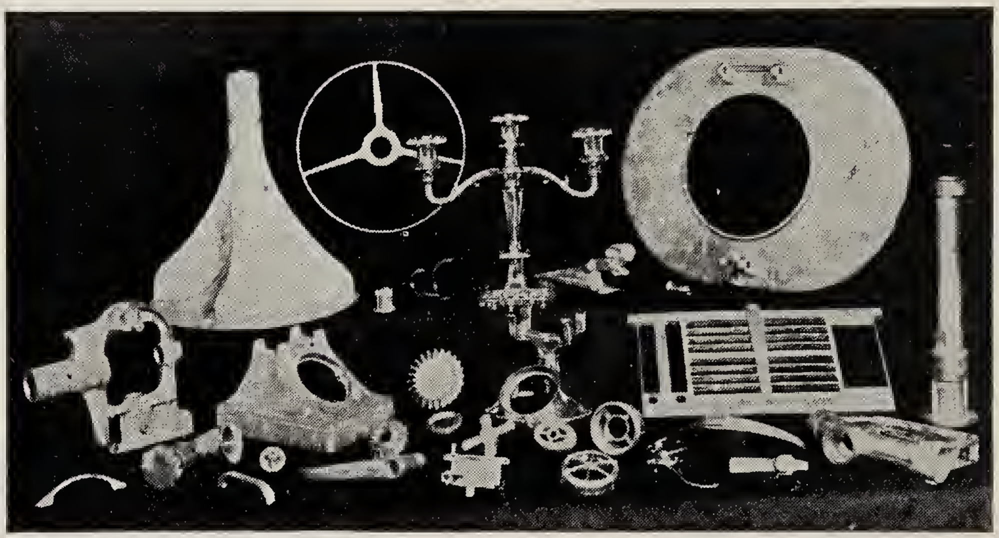
Let DIE CASTINGS

save you money



Here we show only a few of the parts we are making for various Canadian manufacturers. These include automobile ornaments and hardware, plumbing fixtures, padlocks, door stops, hose nozzles, telephone stands, clock cases, candlesticks, and gears and other parts for washing machines. If your product has metal parts now made by the slower and more expensive sand-casting method, it will pay you well to look into the savings and better satisfaction of die casting.

STRENGTH—Our zinc base alloy and aluminum alloy are from virgin metals of a tested, proven formula. A thermostat holds the casting temperature to an absolute pre-determined degree. Our machines, which are of the latest improved type, always produce a dense, homogeneous casting.

PRECISION—Our dies will assure all dimensions within extremely close limits. The variety of castings now being made in our plant is evidence of our ability to turn out successfully whatever you may require.

FINISH—Requires very little machining or polishing in your factory.

"Good Soldiers," These Internationals—Wherever You find them

INSPECTION LINE or firing line . . . it makes no difference to these big International Diesel TracTracTors. They are ready whenever or wherever duty calls.

They're "good soldiers" at training camps and battlefronts, on manoeuvres or under fire overseas. They're winning praises from men and officers alike. They pave the way for airpower, footpower and firepower . . . All honor to the men who drive them!

While these tractors are fighting on the battlefront, it's up to all tractor operators to conserve equipment on the home front. Make it last! Harvester and the International Industrial Power Distributors stand ready to see industrial equipment users through this emergency.

Your Post-War Hoisting Equipment is Ready

As with most other industries, war has accelerated normal research, and advanced the manufacturing technique of Crane and Hoist construction.

Concurrently Morris equipment — completely modernized and refined — has proved itself on the nation's wartime production lines. Now that the needs of the top-priority group have been largely met, these new Morris designs are becoming available to industry in general.

Morris material-handling specialists will gladly consult with you now—show you how Morris equipment can fit into your post-war plans and give you the benefit of their broad experience and knowledge as applied to your production problems.

A Complete Line of 22″ and 30″ Widths

All except the very low priced papers are laboratory tested for non-fading colors. They retain their freshness and beauty long after many other papers under similar conditions fade and lose their original colors.

All low and medium priced papers are ready-trimmed. The selvages are cut off in process of manufacture leaving clean cut, perfect matching edges. Ends of rolls are capped for protection.

READY TRIMMED

An excellent labor saver and easy to hang.

Our ready-trimmed and other papers have for several years been exported to foreign countries, arriving in entirely satisfactory condition.

PAPER THE MODERN PACKAGING MATERIAL

Paper containers, made by Continental, have proved their quality, durability and utility. They have stood up to the most severe wartime tests and are now being used widely and successfully by food packers and other industries who did not consider their use before the war. Those other materials are now released for other wartime duties.

Continental paper bags have come through the war with flying colours too. They have won their way on toughness and durability and are recognized by manufacturers and retailers as the finest obtainable.

Write us for suggestions, samples and prices. Our staff of packaging experts are always at your service.

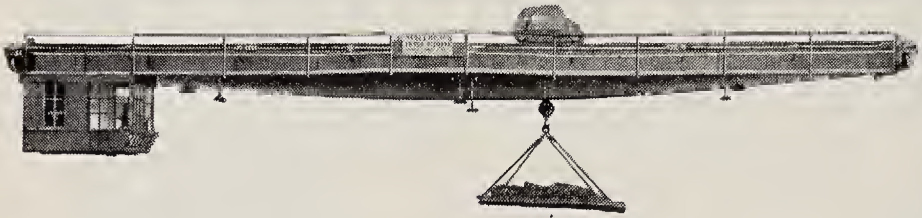
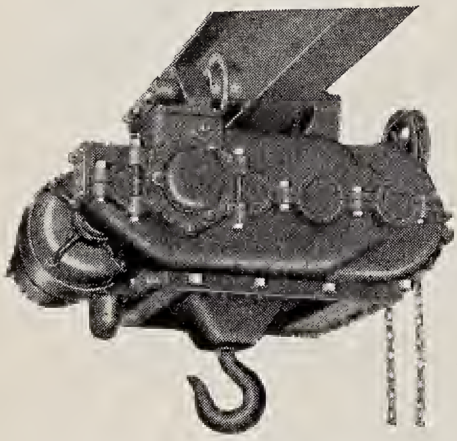
Northern Overhead Electric Cranes



A complete line of cranes in capacities up to 100 tons. Northern Cranes represent the finest work in modern crane building—competent design—excellent workmanship. Gear reductions are transmission type, single unit, oiltight. Gears are machine cut, heat-treated steel. Turned and ground shafts operate in heavy duty anti-friction bearings. Steel welded construction is used liberally. Heavy section girders are built for extreme lateral and vertical loads. Hoists and bridge brakes are built for extreme loads and hard service.



Northern Hi-Lift, Low Headroom Electric Hoists

Long life—steady service—Northern Hi-Lift Hoists stay on the job because they have construction quality. One piece welded steel frames, turned and ground shafts—large roller bearing, machine cut heat-treated gearing, splash lubrication. And, the low headroom feature adds 12″ to 36″ to your working height—with no extra cost. Write for bulletin.

Northern Travelator—Electric Power For Hand Travelled Cranes

Low in Cost—Easy to Apply

Save time, money, and back-breaking labor by applying a Northern Travelator to your hand travel crane. It's inexpensive to buy—easy to apply—any good mechanic can put it up in a few hours. Crane isn't dismantled in process. Write for bulletin.

- Rigid Plate
- Swivel Stem
- Rigid Stem
- Light, Medium and Heavy Truck Casters
- Ball Bearing Plate
- Pivot Bearing and Office Chair Casters, also Roller Skates.

The Faultless Co. have designed over 7000 styles and sizes to fill specific requirements. A Caster design for a specific purpose is an assurance against uninterrupted production and lost motion. The movement of Parts and Materials is a fast and important part of industry.

For the speedy moving of merchandise—in factories, stores, on railroad platforms—on docks, where sturdy, dependable, robust industrial casters are required—there's a Faultless.

For institutions, hospitals, etc., where reliable, strong casters are used, and silence is essential, there is a Faultless caster to fit the need.

Analyzing your needs and recommending exactly the right Caster for any requirement is part of Faultless Service.

Submit your Caster Problem to us.

PIANOS and ORGANS

Canada's Finest

Superior in quality and finish

Never before such opportunity to have the richest instrument appropriated that experience of Engineers, Designers and Voicers can produce. In our small genuine pipe organ, the tone is produced naturally by full scaled wooden and metal organ pipes. Completely built in our own factory with the electro-pneumatic action, it is indeed like the large special built organ. An organist is immediately "At Home" at our console.

The Quidoz Genuine pipe organs are Artistically voiced by Masters of the Trade. If you are interested in a larger Organ, a line to the Factory will arrange a conference with one of our representatives.

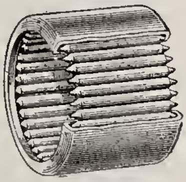
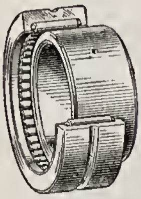
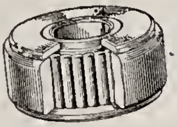
One of these Needle Bearings May Solve a Design Problem for You...



TYPE DC is suitable for applications where size, weight and cost must be held to a minimum.



TYPE NCS is particularly suitable for severe load applications and rugged service conditions.



TYPE AT is designed for aircraft applications in conjunction with standard AN bolts.

TYPE FDT is used for heavy loads in applications where deflections are encountered.

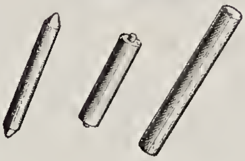
TYPE RC is designed for cam follower service and rolling loads, where outer race is not supported by housing.



TYPE LN Needle Rollers are adaptable where it is impractical to use an assembled, unit type Needle Bearing.

It may not have occurred to you that there are so many different types of Needle Bearings—or that the completeness of the line of these modern, anti-friction bearings makes them adaptable to many design requirements.

Pictured above are eight different types—all different in design yet employing the same basic design principle of a full complement of small diameter needle rollers. Each is engineered for a particular task—or combination of design requirements. Individually each offers the same characteristic advantages of compact design, small size, light weight, high capacity, efficient lubrication and low cost.

The result is that in almost any application where Torrington Needle Bearings are employed, the design problem is simplified; operating efficiency and service life are increased; manufacturing costs are reduced, and sales features are added.

Investigate for yourself how these advantages can be of assistance in your product planning. The Torrington Needle Bearing Catalog 30-A gives complete information, and our engineering staff is ready to help you with any specific design requirement.

L. A. FLUXES

Careful study of the problems of the welder, a constant expert survey of the field to anticipate the needs of industry, and a trained staff of chemists to develop and improve Electrodes, Welding Rods and Fluxes, have been the basic factors whereby Alflex Electrodes, Altem Welding Rods and L.A. Fluxes have attained their present high standard of excellence.

To further ensure their perfect operational characteristics L.A. products are submitted to rigid chemical, physical and practical tests. Electrodes and gas welding rods are double-checked under all operating conditions according to their various requirements . . . Welded specimens are thoroughly tested for strength, ductility and toughness . . . Hard-facing deposits for hardness, resistance to abrasion and impact.

Uniform in quality L.A. Products are dependable for every welding need.

When the call came for efficient and well-organized facilities for war production, Wright Industries Limited were able to comply with the most rigid requirements. W.I.L. provides a two-fold service (1) Engineering capacity and ability for the design and construction of special and standard machines. (2) Complete and prompt service in general maintenance of equipment.

I

Interruptions in production of the tools of Victory must still be avoided. If you are confronted with an unusual manufacturing problem or the necessity for quick repairs on equipment, it will pay you to make use of the extensive experience and broad machine tool knowledge of W.I.L.

L

Low costs, maximum efficiency and speed in production are "musts" in post-war planning. If you are planning for the future we will be glad to assist. W.I.L. enjoy an enviable reputation for progressive developments and profit-producing ideas in equipment engineering, and the manufacture of precision parts. We are at your service.

SHARE OUR EXPERIENCE

FOR more than ninety-five years, the Lang Tanning Company Limited have maintained a leading position in the science of tanning. Modern practices have made it possible to produce Lang Leathers to meet the highest standards of quality set by manufacturers of shoes, luggage, saddling, and many other products.

At present, the bulk of our output is directed toward war-time uses. The rigid demands of war have added more knowledge and experience to the production of Lang Leathers.

Thus you can be assured of a share in experience when you use Lang Leathers in any of their wide range of applications.

Mines and Smelter: COPPER CLIFF, ONT., CANADA

NICKEL FOR ALLOYING IRON, STEEL, BRASS AND BRONZE

NICKEL—In shot and pig forms, and Electrolytic Nickel squares, for producing nickel cast iron, nickel steels, nickel brasses and bronzes.

COPPER-NICKEL SHOT—For nickel additions to brass and bronze. Contains 50% Copper and 50% Nickel.

WROUGHT MONEL, NICKEL AND INCONEL

MONEL—A nickel-copper alloy having high strength and hardness, and good resistance to corrosion. Used extensively in the chemical, marine, power equipment, laundry, food service, pickling, petroleum and pulp and paper industries.

"K" MONEL—A non-magnetic, age-hardening alloy with high strength and hardness. Its resistance to corrosion is similar to that of Monel.

"R" MONEL—A free-machining alloy particularly adapted for use in automatic screw machines.

"KR" MONEL—A free-machining grade of "K" Monel which can be heat treated to develop similar high mechanical properties.

"A" NICKEL—Commercially pure malleable nickel for turbine blading, radio tube parts, gaskets, high temperature applications and corrosion-resisting service.

"D" NICKEL—Contains approximately 4.5% manganese, but otherwise has the composition of nickel. The manganese provides improved resistance to attack by sulphur compounds at elevated temperatures under both oxidizing and reducing conditions. Used for spark plug electrodes, gas engine ignition tubes, thermometer wells, and other high temperature applications not requiring a material with mechanical properties quite so high as those of Inconel.

"Z" NICKEL—An age-hardening high-nickel alloy in which great strength and hardness are accompanied by the high resistance to corrosion that is characteristic of nickel. Can be heat-treated after forming to develop 2½ to 4 times the strength of structural steel. An excellent spring material.

INCONEL — A nickel-chromium-iron alloy having exceptional strength and resistance to oxidation at high temperatures. It was developed primarily for freedom from tarnishing and other effects of corrosion in the food industries but has since found wide application in the furnace and heat treat field.

CASTINGS — MONEL

MONEL — Monel castings have the same order of resistance to corrosion as wrought Monel and are used for the pump impellers, filter plates, valve bodies, pumps, bushings and fittings.

"S" MONEL—A small silicon addition confers age-hardening characteristics. The hardness of the alloy is of the order of 320 Brinell as cast and may be increased to 350 by suitable thermal treatment. "S" Monel has excellent gall and erosion resistance, thus making it particularly suitable for valve seats, and sliding or other moving parts. It retains high hardness at red heat.

TECHNICAL SERVICE

A large staff of engineers and specialists on technical subjects is maintained throughout Canada, United States and Great Britain. The cumulative experience of these men is available. In the consideration of new products for post-war development, or better equipment to produce your product, the use of nickel or one of the many nickel alloys might prove highly advantageous. Your confidence in inviting us to discuss any matters in which we can be of assistance will be appreciated. Our representatives are more or less constantly in your district and can frequently arrange to discuss technical matters personally.

Foreword to SPECIAL EXPORT SECTION

by THE HONOURABLE JAMES A. MacKINNON

Minister of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

For the fourth successive year, exports from Canada have reached unprecedented levels. Exports in 1944, valued at over three thousand million dollars, represent nearly seven times the value recorded in the low year of the depression—1932. The influence of wartime conditions is indicated by continuing exports on a truly great scale of army vehicles (including trucks, gun carriers and tanks) guns and rifles, shells and cartridges, ships, aircraft, explosives, and war stores of all kinds. At the same time, exports of many normal peacetime commodities have also felt the stimulus of war.

This vast increase in Canada's trade throughout the war years has been accompanied by corresponding expansion in almost every index by which Canadian prosperity is measured. The connection between economic well-being and Canada's export trade has always been very close.

The spectacular increases in Canada's trade in some directions should not be allowed, however, to conceal the fact that in other directions inevitable wartime restrictions and limitations have had to be applied. Apples, beef cattle, silk stockings, patent leather, typewriters and electrical apparatus are some of the items that have been casualties of war. The resumption of normal conditions in such fields and the re-establishment of markets dislocated by the war are matters which require the greatest forethought now. The problems of trade, always difficult, will become even more intricate and pressing after victory is won.

Within the Department of Trade and Commerce, important administrative changes forecast last year are being carried into effect. No effort will be spared in making the Department fully equipped to assist Canadians to take advantage of the opportunities that await them to foster and expand their international trade. A new Division of the Commercial Intelligence Service, known as the Export Planning Division, has been created and is now working on export programs in detail. The establishment of additional commodity divisions is well in hand, as well as plans to re-inforce our trade promotion forces abroad. Offices will be re-opened in France, Belgium, Scandinavia and other countries as soon as conditions permit.

One of the most troublesome problems in the post-war period will be the difficulties which will beset some of our most important customers in obtaining the means of payment. For that reason, Canada has taken a lively and active interest in the discussions of financial experts at Bretton Woods and their proposals respecting an international monetary fund and a bank for reconstruction and development.

Along the same lines, the Export Credits Insurance Act passed by the House of Commons in August 1944 is an important measure in support of post-war exports from Canada. The Corporation set up under this Act is now in process of organization and will play a significant part in maintaining a high level of trade. Under the Export Credits Insurance Act also, loans may be made to foreign governments or their securities may be purchased or guaranteed. Some agreements under this Act have already been concluded. These and others which may be concluded subsequently will contribute greatly to the restoration of countries devastated and disturbed by war and at the same time will provide necessary support to our own export industries.

Another matter now claiming an increased amount of attention is the need for a proper national shipping policy. Two agencies, the Canadian Shipping Board and the Shipping Priorities Committee, are at present operating in association with my department in sharing the wartime responsibility for finding and allocating space for the carriage of Canadian products overseas. In addition, an inter-departmental Advisory Committee on Merchant Shipping Policy has been at work for some time in assisting the government to formulate plans for the post-war period.

While the promotion of exports will remain the primary function of the Department, a new Division will be established to study imports, in response to requests from both exporters and importers. Canada needs raw materials from other countries. A sound and well-balanced trade must take into account a proper relation between imports and exports. I should make it clear that this new division will not encroach on the well-recognized responsibilities of other Departments such as National Revenue and Finance in respect to import matters.

The Government has always emphasized that wartime controls have been of a temporary character. Already, we have been able to relax or eliminate some. This trend will, I hope, be continued, always subject to the changing demands of war and the necessity of avoiding premature action that might do more harm than good.

Canada will enter the post-war period probably with less disruption in normal trade activity than any other country, except only the United States. That is fortunate because every aspect of our national life rests on our foreign trade. The problems of reconstruction will be great but the opportunities and rewards well worth the greatest effort. As I have said on a previous occasion, the difficulties can be solved and the rewards gained if there is constant and creative cooperation between industries and the government.

GOVERNMENT SERVICES, EXPORT, SHIPPING AND EXCHANGE CONTROLS

DEPARTMENT OF TRADE AND COMMERCE

The Act of Parliament which in 1887, created the Department of Trade and Commerce and which was brought into effect by an Order-in-Council, dated December 5th, 1892, merely provided that there should be a Department of the Government of Canada to be called the Department of Trade and Commerce. The duties and powers of the Minister were defined to be the execution of laws enacted by the Parliament of Canada relating to such matters connected with trade and commerce generally, as had not been assigned to any other Department of the Government. In the succeeding years a wide range of services have been performed and at present the Acts administered by the Department include The Canada Grain Act; Electricity Inspection Act; Gas Inspection Act; Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act; Electric Units Act; Precious Metals Marking Act; Statistics Act; Water Meters Act; Inspection of Weights and Measures Inspection Act; Inland Water Freight Rates Act; Grain Futures Act; The Export Credits Insurance Act.

The various functions of the Department are carried out by the following organizations:—

Foreign Trade:

The Commercial Intelligence Service in Canada and abroad.
The Foreign Tariffs Division.
The Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies Division.
Commercial Relations Division.

Publicity:

Publicity and Advertising Division.
Exhibitions and Publicity Services.

Statistics:

Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Canada Grain Act.

Inspectional Services:

The Electricity and Gas Inspection Services.
The Weights and Measures Inspection Service.
The Precious Metals Marking Act.

Bodies Reporting Through Minister of Trade and Commerce:

Canadian Shipping Board.
Shipping Priorities Committee.
Export Credits Insurance Corporation.
Export Permit Branch.
Canadian Export Board.

THE COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE SERVICE

The Commercial Intelligence Service, which is the chief agency of the Government for assisting export trade, consists of headquarters in the Department at Ottawa and a corps of Trade Commissioners stationed abroad.

The headquarters staff comprises a director in charge of administration and an assistant director; an Export Planning Division; a number of commodity divisions; an editorial division; and a trade directories division.

The Export Planning Division acts as a claimant agency for export quotas of raw materials, semi-manufactured and finished goods as they become available for civilian requirements and allocates shares of these quotas to various countries pro rata on the basis of past trade or otherwise as circumstances may warrant.

The function of the commodity divisions is to collect data relating to the commodities which Canada exports and to distribute information regarding export opportunities to Canadian exporters.

By specializing on groups of commodities, the officers of the divisions obtain an intimate knowledge of the trade in these products and are able to render valuable assistance to exporters.

The Import Division, recently organized, will examine Canadian requirements of foreign products and recommend suitable sources of supply. This Division will work in close co-operation with Government agencies and commercial houses interested in import trade.

The Commercial Intelligence Journal, which contains the reports of Trade Commissioners and other useful trade information, is issued weekly for a nominal subscription of $1.00 per annum.

The Directory of Canadian Exporters, a copy of which is supplied to each Trade Commissioner' contains a complete record of every known Canadian exporter, the commodities it manufactures' the names of its foreign agents, etc. The Trade Commissioners compile for their own use and for the Department an Importers Directory containing similar information about firms in their respective territories who are known to be interested in purchasing from Canada.

Prior to the war there were thirty-three Trade Commissioner offices. As a result of enemy conquests, offices in Europe, Japan, Hong Kong, China and British Malaya had to be closed and the Trade Commissioners and Assistant Trade Commissioners have been assigned for special duty in Canada. At present there are twenty-eight offices, fifteen in Empire countries and thirteen in foreign countries. Two specialists, a Fruit Trade Commissioner and an Animal Products Trade Commissioner, are stationed in London.

The duties of Trade Commissioners are to promote the export trade of Canada; to link up the Canadian exporter with the foreign importer; to study conditions and needs of the territories where they are located; to make direct enquiries or conduct preliminary surveys regarding the potential market for any product, reporting the exact kinds of goods wanted, competition to be met, and the best methods of packing, shipping and billing. Their services are always at the disposal of firms and individuals interested in Canada's trade expansion.

Trade developments the world over are reported by these Commissioners to the Department at Ottawa and this information is available to all Canadian exporters.

Assistance that can be given by Canadian Trade Commissioners

Despite the fact that many Canadian plants are fully occupied in connection with the war effort and also that the necessity exists for conserving most of the basic materials for war purposes, there are many commodities which are available for export. In any investigation which Canadian exporters may wish to make looking to possible markets for the products they manufacture or produce, Trade Commissioners are prepared to render a wide range of assistance, which may be indicated, in part, as follows:—

Commercial Information

1. Preliminary information relating to possible markets abroad for Canadian products, including:

(a) The present and prospective demand for their goods.

(b) Foreign and local competition (with specimens, catalogues and prices).

(c) Details of best selling methods.

(d) Reports on foreign buyers, though the Department cannot assume any responsibility in any opinions expressed by Trade Commissioners. They, however, will use their best endeavours to advise exporters as to the standing of such firms.

(e) Specifications of articles in particular demand.

Agents, Buyers, and Distributors

2. Trade Commissioners will also:—

(a) Recommend to intending exporters the names of responsible parties in a position to act as agents or buyers and distributors.

(b) Give every possible assistance to such agents, etc., and will introduce them to influential individuals or associations who may be in a position to buy goods from Canada.

(c) Give confidential information, when so requested, as to the activities of agents appointed by Canadian exporters, or firms to whom sales have been, or are being, made.

SEE INDEX OF SUBJECTS, PAGE 202

3. Trade Commissioners can assist in advising Canadian exporters and manufacturers:—

(a) As to the best media in which to place advertisements and the form which such advertisements should take, i.e., their adaptation to the special requirements of the community.

(b) In the display of catalogues, price lists and samples where they can be seen by potential buyers.

(c) As to the distribution of trade literature and its probable cost.

General

4. (a) Trade Commissioners are always prepared to receive visitors from Canada and introduce them to possible buyers or agents, or put them in contact with such experts as legal advisers, interpreters, and shipping and banking representatives.

(b) The good offices of Trade Commissioners can always be invoked with a view to settling difficulties which may arise between the Canadian exporters and buyers abroad.

(c) Trade Commissioners will at any time provide such information as may be available as to freight rates customs, port dues, etc., so as to enable Canadian firms to quote prices for delivery overseas. They will be glad also to provide information respecting cost of travel, regulations applicable to commercial travellers, packing and marking of goods, shipping accommodation, storage arrangements, and any other foreign government regulations or conditions which have to be complied with.

Financial Arrangements

5. Particulars can be obtained with regard to:—

(a) Terms of credit which may be given to foreign buyers.

(b) Financial houses and banks who will discount bills or give credit.

(c) Regulations governing the recovery of debts in foreign countries.

Information Necessary to the Trade Commissioner

When a Canadian exporter desires the assistance of a Trade Commissioner in marketing his goods abroad, he should with the first letter provide that officer with the following:—

(a) Catalogues and best export prices c.i.f. port of entry, or failing that, f.o.b. Canadian port. It is quite useless to send prices f.o.b. factory.

(b) Details regarding process of manufacture if convenient.

(c) If not too bulky, samples of what the firms have to offer should be forwarded—not necessarily a full range—and a draft or money order sufficient to cover the customs duties and landing charges on the samples.

(d) Bankers' references.

(e) The proportion of output which is available for export, time required to ship from receipt of order and the quantity for which orders will be accepted.

(f) Details of the experience he has had in the territory served by the Trade Commissioner.

(g) Information regarding previous connections, if any, which he has either with agents or importers. If connections still exist, what, if any, bearing will they have on fresh contacts that may be established through the efforts of the Trade Commissioner.

The Trade Commissioner will thus be in a position to make a survey of his territory, report the opportunities for the lines to be exported, and can then either place the exporter in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

Canadian Government Trade Commissioner Offices

Note.—Bentley's Second Phrase Code is used by Canadian Trade Commissioners.

What the Canadian Exporter can do for the Trade Commissioner

The meagre information frequently furnished by Canadian exporters places a serious handicap on the Trade Commissioner in his efforts to market their products.

A general statement, therefore, of the facts about the exporter, his banking references, whether he is already engaged in foreign trade, and for what period and to what extent, are some of the essentials which should be given in the first letter either to the Department or to a Trade Commissioner, particularly the latter. He also wants general data about the commodity which the exporter wishes to sell in that particular market, noting any special advantages pertaining to the line offered, particularly as compared with well-known articles of the same type from other countries. He also wants to know exactly what the manufacturer is himself willing to do to place his goods in the new field: the basis on which sales would be made to the importer or on which goods could be offered for sale by a recognized agent, and the commission that would be paid the latter; what would be required of an importing house or agent in order to obtain the agency for the line; whether the manufacturer would send consignment stock or samples and in what quantity; whether he is prepared to advertise or to co-operate in advertising and to what extent; the facilities possessed by the manufacturer for export shipment, and the kind of supervision that is exercised by him over the packing of goods destined for a distant market.

Prices

Prices should never be quoted from an interior manufacturing point in Canada. Where quotations c.i.f. port of destination are not practicable, they should be given f.o.b. steamer, but it is strongly recommended that prices should be quoted c.i.f. This is a most important point, as the foreign buyer has no definite knowledge of the charges likely to be incurred if quotations are f.o.b. cars at port of shipment and freight rates from some interior point in Canada to the seaboard are unobtainable in foreign countries. He has no means of knowing insurance rates, or the elements that enter into the fixing of the premiums. As a rule he is unable to obtain a quotation of an outward freight rate at an inward port, as the general practice of steamship companies is to refer a request for a freight rate from (say) Montreal to Auckland to the agent in the former city, although an approximate rate may be quoted. The foreign buyer is at a distinct disadvantage unless prices are quoted c.i.f..

Discounts

Discounts should be printed, or typewritten, preferably on a folder or slip accompanying the catalogue. In submitting an illustrated descriptive catalogue to prospective customers the importer should not be placed in the position of having to disclose the exact terms on which the goods are offered to him.

Gross and Net Weight

A knowledge of the gross and net weights per unit quoted is essential. Without these the prospective purchaser is unable to estimate laid down costs.

Summary of Points to be Noted

The fullest possible information in regard to the commodity and complete details on the following points would greatly aid the Trade Commissioners in the intelligent handling of inquiries addressed to them as to the introduction and subsequent marketing of Canadian goods on behalf of exporters:—

1. Cable address, code used, and special code words not in the regular code books.
2. Bankers' references.

SEE INDEX OF SUBJECTS, PAGE 202

3. (a) The basis on which prices are quoted, whether c.i.f. main foreign ports; f.a.s. Canadian ports; or f.o.b. vessel.
   (b) Are prices in Canadian or American funds?
   (c) If prices are c.i.f. and transshipment has to be made, are such items as consular charges and disbursements at port of transshipment and/or unloading for account of buyer?
4. Are quotations firm, or subject to change without notice due to fluctuations in costs of raw material?
5. On what quantity basis are quotations made? Can prices be reduced on quantity orders and if so how much?
6. Are orders subject to acceptance by exporter?
7. What brand do lines bear, and are these to be sold under this brand in foreign markets?
8. What is the nature of packing? Heavy wooden crates, boxes, new bags or burlap?
9. Are lines stocked and available for immediate shipment? If not, how long after receipt of order will goods go forward?
10. What are your terms? Is there a special discount for cash?
11. What is the gross and net weight in pounds? Measurement in cubic feet?

With the foregoing information on hand, supplemented by recent catalogues and descriptive literature, and, if not too bulky, samples—not necessarily a full range—Trade Commissioners are put in a position to give the best service to Canadian exporters and can either place them in communication with reliable importers or recommend suitable agents.

FOREIGN TARIFFS DIVISION

The Foreign Tariffs Division of the Department of Trade and Commerce furnishes information on the tariffs and trade regulations in force in all countries to which Canadian goods are exported. The information supplied relates to rates of duty applicable to particular goods, commercial treaties, methods of valuation for duty purposes, anti-dumping legislation, Empire content required for tariff preferences, prescribed forms of certificates of origin, invoicing and consular procedure, merchandise marks laws, food standards, animal and plant pest regulations, import prohibitions, licensing, quota restrictions, exchange control and related subjects. The Division answers specific enquiries from exporters, issues circulars, and prepares articles for the Commercial Intelligence Journal. It co-operates with other branches of the government service in assembling data for tariff negotiations between Canada and other countries.

SUBSIDIZED STEAMSHIP SERVICES

Under the Mail Subsidies and Steamship Subventions Branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce, subsidies for ocean services have been paid to assist in the maintenance of trade communications between Canada and other countries for the use of Canadian exporters and for the maintenance and development of our foreign markets; and also for the carriage of mails between Canada and certain foreign countries.

Local services are subsidized to assist in maintaining adequate transportation by water, chiefly along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of Canada, for passengers, mails and freight.

Since the outbreak of war nearly all local subsidized services have been continued, but the subsidized ocean services have gradually disappeared under war conditions, practically all ocean shipping now being under some form or other of Government control.

In addition to carrying on these activities the Director of the Branch has represented the Department of Trade and Commerce on inter-departmental committees formed either before or after the outbreak of war, including the Canadian Shipping Board, of which he is Vice-Chairman, the Ship Licensing Committee, the War Risk Insurance Committee, and a number of other committees which have completed their work.

PUBLICITY AND ADVERTISING BRANCH

The Publicity and Advertising Branch has two primary objectives: the distribution and circulation of informative reading matter dealing with Canadian industrial, trade, financial and other activities to the various parts of the world in which Canadian trade representatives are located, and also throughout Canada; and the periodical placing of advertising designed to inform those interested in Canadian export trade, both at home and abroad, with the facilities available in the Department to assist them.

The Branch prepares and forwards each week to all Trade Commissioners a Canadian News Letter, covering a fairly wide range of Canadian news. This letter is translated into Spanish and Portuguese for the Latin American countries, while copies in French are now going to Paris. The Branch also prepares a letter entitled the Commercial Intelligence News, which is a digest of reports from Trade Commissioners, for distribution in Canada.

The advertising placed by the Branch in Canada is largely directed to manufacturers, exporters and business executives and stresses the services rendered by the Department to exporters, and has referred particularly in war years to those relating to wartime shipping restrictions, quotas, etc. Certain advertising, more or less of a goodwill nature, has been placed outside of Canada.

Under the supervision of the Branch and with the close co-operation of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Bureau of Translations, an illustrated booklet on Canadian educational institutions was published in 1944 in Spanish and Portuguese, with a small complementary edition in English. A fully illustrated manual on Canada in both Spanish and Portuguese is being published this year.

EXHIBITIONS

The Canadian Government Exhibition Commission is maintained by the Department of Trade and Commerce for the purpose of assisting Canadian producers and manufacturers to direct attention in overseas markets to the variety and merits of their products.

The Commission was originally concerned with organizing Canada's participation in international exhibitions. Through continuous exhibition endeavours it has helped to a high degree to develop the sale of Canadian products, especially in the United Kingdom. The Commission's aim is to work out methods by which practical assistance can be extended to Canadian producers and manufacturers, to increase the sale of their goods through the medium of exhibitions of various kinds. The Commission also provides facilities to exporters and their agents for the display of Canadian products under favourable conditions by other means than participation in exhibitions—such as shop windows, displays, trade fairs, etc.

Since the outbreak of war the activities of the Exhibition Commission in the United Kingdom have been discontinued. Preparations, however, are now being made to revive these activities.

THE DOMINION BUREAU OF STATISTICS

An Inter-Departmental Commission on Statistics in 1912 recommended a series of specific reforms and enlargements in Canadian statistics, and a policy of statistical co-ordination for the Dominion, under central direction.

Following the recommendations of this report, the office of Dominion Statistician was created in 1915 and three years later the Dominion Bureau of Statistics was set up by statute as a central statistical organization.

Since its organization in 1918, the Bureau has created out of many heterogeneous units a unified, nation-wide statistical system in which the correlation of the several subjects and their interpretation from a comprehensive national viewpoint has been the primary objective. By means of Dominion-Provincial statistical conferences held from time to time, a useful degree of co-operation and uniformity of statistical classification and method has been achieved and progress along these lines continues. These main advantages of statistical centralization have not only been substantially attained, but the treatment of statistics, not merely as aggregations of figures, but as primary data from which complex social and economic phenomena may be interpreted, has been emphasized. This view of a true national statistic as revealing the controlling economic forces that operate and their interplay, and the value of such a statistic in administrative planning along national lines, involves, of course, an added function of the Bureau, viz., its usefulness as a national laboratory for economic and social research. This is a development that, as yet, is in its infancy, but the foundation of such a service, comparable with the increasing importance of Canada in the economic and political world, has already been laid.

As now organized, the Branches of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics are: I. Administration; II. Census; III. Vital Statistics; IV. Agricultural Statistics; V. Fisheries and Animal Products; VI. Mining, Metallurgical and Chemical; VII. Forestry and Allied Industries; VIII. General Manufactures; IX. External Trade (Imports and Exports); X. Prices; XI. Merchandising and Services; XII. International Payments; XIII. Construction; XIV. Transportation and Public Utilities; XV. Financial Statistics; XVI. Employment and Payroll Statistics; XVII. Judicial Statistics; XVIII. Education Statistics; XIX. Census of Institutions; XX. Industrial Research and Social Analysis; XXI. Canada Year Book; XXII. Business Statistics.

While primarily serving the Government, the Bureau realizes that, in a democratic community, every citizen is a part of the Government and should be well informed regarding the social and economic conditions of his country. Accordingly, the Bureau furnishes to all applicants answers to all manner of questions on all sorts of topics. In particular, it supplies to business men of all classes information regarding business conditions and statistics regarding production, imports, exports, prices, stocks, etc., of all kinds of commodities, thus enabling them to direct their operations more effectively to their own greater advantage and to the greater advantage of Canada. Special tabulations may be made, or other investigations carried out, at a fee based only on the extra clerical costs to the Bureau.

CANADA GRAIN ACT

Under the Canada Grain Act of 1912 the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada was created as a semi-judicial and administrative body to administer the Act. Its duties and powers are to provide for the inspection and weighing of grain; to license and supervise the operation of grain elevators; to register warehouse receipts for grain delivered to terminal and eastern elevators; to collect and collate grain statistics; to maintain a grain research laboratory; to operate terminal elevators constructed by the Dominion Government; and to inquire into any matter upon or without complaint made relating to the handling of grain under the Act. It also administers the Inland Water Freight Rates Act.

The board, which consists of a chief commissioner and two commissioners, has its offices in Winnipeg. Four assistant commissioners, stationed respectively at Winnipeg, Calgary, Saskatoon and Fort William, investigate complaints and thereafter make a full report to the board. In addition to the executive offices, which include the secretary with clerical staff, the Licence and Bonding and Statistics Branches, the organization comprises the Inspection, Weighing and Registration branches, the management of the Canadian Government Elevators, the Grain Appeal Tribunals to decide on appeals from decisions of grain inspecting officers, Committees on Grain Standards to select and settle standards for the different grades of grain in the Eastern and Western divisions, and the Grain Research Laboratory.

Inspection offices are located at Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton for primary inspection, at Fort William and Vancouver for terminal and final inspection, at Montreal, Toronto and Chatham for resampling and checking western grain passing through the Eastern division, and grading grain grown in the Eastern division. Inspection services are also maintained at all other points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Weighing Branch provides weighing services on all grain delivered to or shipped from terminal elevators and maintains staffs at all points at which terminal elevators are situated. The Registration Branch records all terminal and Eastern warehouse receipts and transfer receipts for grain unloaded into terminal or Eastern elevators, and cancels these receipts when the grain is shipped. Of the public terminal elevators constructed by the Department of Trade and Commerce only those at Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton, and Prince Rupert are now maintained and operated by a general manager under the board. The Grain Research Laboratory at Winnipeg acts in an advisory capacity to the board, conducts investigations to determine the value of the different grades and varieties of grain, and investigates problems connected with grading, transportation and storage, moisture content and other problems peculiar to grain.

The Board is also charged with the administration of The Grain Futures Act, 1939. The provisions of this Act, however, had not been put into force at January 1st, 1941.

Under The Prairie Farm Assistance Act of 1939 the Board collects from producers in the three Prairie Provinces and the Peace River District of British Columbia one per centum of the purchase price of all Western wheat, oats, barley and rye sold to licensees under the Canada Grain Act.

Under the provisions of Order in Council P.C. 10229, dated 19 November, 1942, the Board collects the levy for War Risk Insurance on grain.

EXPORT PERMIT BRANCH

The purposes of export control are to prevent exports falling into enemy hands, to ensure sufficient supplies at home, and, by diverting as much as possible to Allied sources, to ensure maximum efficiency in our war effort and that of our Allies. Export control can also be used as a potent economic weapon in securing concessions from other countries and applying pressure to pro-enemy areas.

In 1939 and 1940 export control covered not more than two or three dozen commodities, mostly strategic materials. However, as the war continued shortages arose and sources of supply of materials essential to the prosecution of the war were lost so that it became necessary to extend the control. At present almost every class of commodity or goods of which Canada has been an exporter is now subject to export control.

In making application for permits to export it should be remembered that permits cannot be issued on a moment's notice, not only because there are hundreds of applications to be dealt with each day, but because the supply situation in many cases must be investigated and the required bookkeeping entries made in the Export Permit Branch to ensure that the quantities to be exported are deducted from the total amounts allocated. Exporters are urged to apply for an export permit immediately on receiving foreign orders or an inquiry to supply, and not wait until they have accepted the order or until shipping space has been arranged. For some destinations shipping space cannot be arranged until the exporter is in receipt of a valid export permit and in some cases an export permit might not be forthcoming.

The British West Indies Colonies, the Governments of the Union of South Africa, India and Newfoundland issue import licences or certificates of essentiality and at their request the Export Permit Branch has agreed not to issue export permits unless the application is accompanied by a valid import licence or certificate of essentiality. The reason for this is that the authorities in the country of import wish only certain classes of goods to be imported, of which an allocation has been made to them by the Canadian authorities on Canadian ability to supply. Therefore, it is essential that their records be in balance with the corresponding records in Canada. This is accomplished by means of the import licence or certificate of essentiality.

During 1944 the shipping situation to Latin American destinations showed a tendency to improve. The Decentralization Plan, inaugurated by the United States and Latin American countries in 1943 and adhered to by Canada as a consequence has been modified and many commodities exempted from its application. In the case of shipments to Africa and some European destinations it has become necessary to allot shipping space on a priority basis owing to the development of transportation difficulties.

The application of price ceilings in Canada has also affected Canadian export control. Before commodities may be exported on which subsidy has been paid by the Canadian Government in order to maintain these domestic ceiling prices, the subsidy paid must be refunded.

The policy of co-operating with the United States Export Control authorities also influences Canada's export control. Canada depends on the United States for a large percentage of her imports, which are permitted by that country to move freely into Canada. In many instances the United States authorities would not permit those commodities or goods to move with the same freedom to other countries. It is, therefore, necessary to control the re-export of these goods to prevent Canada being used as a "back door" through which they might be shipped at a later date to destinations of which the United States authorities would not approve.

The Export Permit Regulations were revised in 1944 and widely distributed to export associations, boards of trade, chambers of commerce and individual exporters. Toward the latter part of the year, with an improvement in the general supply situation, on the recommendation of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and the Wartime Industries Control Board a large number of items were removed from export control when exported to British Empire and United States destinations. However, because of an over-riding clause in the Regulations, permits to export are still required to all other destinations. Those commodities which have been removed from export control and are in free supply will generally be granted permits to destinations other than the British Empire and the United States, provided that all other export control requirements have been fulfilled.

The general policy underlying the administration of export control is to place more and more commodities under quotas or allocations, particularly to Caribbean and British Empire destinations, and to eliminate the controls when this is compatible with the prosecution of the war and the overall supply situation.

THE CANADIAN SHIPPING BOARD

The Canadian Shipping Board was established by Order-in-Council, P.C. 4251, dated December 21st, 1939, as a special wartime agency (1) to co-ordinate the activities of the various government department and agencies concerned with wartime shipping, (2) to devise measures for meeting Canada's wartime shipping problems and (3) to provide a Canadian governmental agency capable of dealing directly, and co-operating effectively, with the United Kingdom Ministry of Transport which, following the outbreak of the war, had assumed complete control over British merchant ships and shipping.

At present, the powers and duties of the Board as specifically defined in Order-in-Council, P.C. 6785 of July 31st, 1942, (which amended and superseded P.C. 4251) are:

(a) to control the voyages of all Canadian merchant vessels over 150* gross tons, other than fishing vessels;

(b) to issue the licenses required to implement the above control. These licenses which are dealt with by the Board's Ship Licensing Committee may be issued for particular voyages or to cover voyages within certain general waters within a stated period of time;

(c) to deal with applications for transportation and priority of movement with respect to the transport of materials and supplies other than those consigned to the Government of the United Kingdom or of any other country, by water between ports in Canada or between ports in Canada and ports in the United Kingdom, or any other of his Majesty's Dominions, or in any other state;

(d) to recommend to the departments concerned, or to the Governor in Council, policies or specific measures designed to assist in providing water transport for Canadian import, export and domestic requirements; and

(e) to maintain close liaison with the United Kingdom Ministry of War Transport and the appropriate departments or agencies of the Government of the United States.

Additional authority is conferred on the Board under Regulation 44 of the Defence of Canada Regulations by which it may also control Canadian ships in respect of the following matters (supplementary to those mentioned above).

(a) the classes of cargoes or passengers which may be carried in the ship; and

(b) the chartering of the ship, and the terms and conditions upon which cargoes or passengers may be carried in the ship.

Originally, the Board was concerned largely with providing adequate shipping space for the sea transportation of materials shipped abroad, but as the war progressed, the maintenance of export trade became a matter of less consequence and the Board's principal present work is (1) to provide or secure space for the orderly movement of essential priority materials into Canada, (2) to co-operate with the B.M.W.T. and W.S.A. in providing shipping space for the outward movement from Canadian ports of Canadian materials required by allied and friendly countries and, (3) to control and direct the shipping required for essential bulk cargo movements on the Great Lakes, St. Lawrence and coastal waters of Canada.

To perform these functions, the Board through its Ship Licensing Committee controls the voyages of all Canadian merchant vessels of 100 gross tons and over, other than fishing vessels, in order to ensure that they are employed to the best advantage in the prosecution of the war. It also controls the chartering of all such vessels by Canadian interests and, in conjunction with the British Ministry of War Transport and with the War Shipping Administration of the United States, has placed ceilings on time-charter rates payable for vessels, in order to prevent inflation in water transportation costs. In consultation with the Canadian Department of Transport, it exercises control over the sale of Canadian vessels to foreign registry in order to prevent ships essential to Canada's war effort being removed from Canadian registry, and it is the central organization through which the Canadian Armed Services funnel their requests for merchant vessels required by them for special service.

Through its Representatives in London and Washington, the Board maintains close contact with the British and American government shipping authorities in order that the operations of the Canadian merchant fleet may be integrated efficiently with those of the U.K. and U.S. in the overall allied war effort. The Board also, through its Ship's Privilege License system, co-operates with those authorities in discouraging neutral vessels from engaging in trades helpful to the enemy.

The members, officers and representatives of the Board, who are all private shipping experts, or Senior Federal Government Officers, are as follows:

Members:

A. L. W. MacCallum, O.B.E., Chairman and Director of Shipping;
Manager, The Shipping Federation of Canada.

F. E. Bawden, Vice-Chairman;
Director of Trade Routes and Steamship Subsidies, Department of Trade and Commerce.

Captain E. S. Brand, O.B.E., R.C.N.,
Director of Trade Division, Naval Service, Department of National Defence.

Captain J. W. Kerr, Supervisor of Nautical Services, Department of Transport.

* Reduced to "100 gross tons and over" in January 1944.

T. C. Lockwood, Transport Controller, Montreal.

H. F. Angus, Department of External Affairs.

A. W. Merriam, Department of National Revenue.

Secretary:
Bruce A. Macdonald, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner, Department of Trade and Commerce.

Representatives in London, England:
Frederic Hudd, Chief Canadian Government Trade Commissioner in U.K., Canada House, London, S.W. 1.
James A. Langley, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner, Canada House, London, S.W.1.

Representative in Washington:
A. L. Lawes, 5075 Commerce Building, Washington, D.C.

Representative in India:
Paul Sykes, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner, P.O. Box 886, Bombay, India.

Representative in Halifax:
A. T. O'Leary, 611 Bank of Nova Scotia Building, Halifax, N.S.

Representative in Saint John:
H. E. Kane, 145 Prince William St., Saint John, N.B.

SHIPPING PRIORITIES COMMITTEE

The Shipping Priorities Committee was established by Order-in-Council in October, 1941. It consists of an Import and an Export Section and works on the basic principle that United States and Canadian defence and civilian shipping requirements should receive equal consideration.

The Import Section sets up an import priorities list covering Canadian requirements from offshore countries. Contact is maintained with the Division of Stockpiling and Transportation of the War Production Board in Washington, and a joint North American import program has been established through the United States Interdepartmental Shipping Priorities Advisory Committee. Canadian import priorities, which the Canadian Shipping Board are unable to move, are carried by the United States War Shipping Administration. Periodical revisions of these shipping quotas are made in accordance with the supply position.

When it was decided to establish within the Department of Trade and Commerce an Import Division, the organisation of this new Division was entrusted to the Import Section of the Shipping Priorities Committee, thus making it possible to consolidate for more permanent use the information which is available in the records of the Shipping Priorities Committee. The nucleus of this new Division has been formed and the Import Section is in a position to help Canadian importers by giving advice with regard to import regulations, setting up quotas for them and assisting in securing shipping space.

The Export Section, in co-operation with the Foreign Economic Administration, is concerned with freight-space applications to British West African colonies; French, Portuguese and Belgian colonies in Africa; Middle East countries; British and French possessions in the South Pacific. It is no longer concerned with shipments to Latin America, except with regard to newsprint and the movement of merchandise to Argentina. Newsprint is not under export permit to Latin America, and the newsprint program as administered ensures equitable distribution to the Latin American newspapers, which is of primary importance in view of the tight supply position of this commodity.

The officers of the Committee are Trade Commissioners and the staff has been drawn largely from the Department of Trade and Commerce.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTROL BOARD

General Principles

The main purpose of foreign exchange control is to balance as far as possible Canada's income and outgo of United States dollars in order to ensure that United States dollars will be available as required to obtain vital war and other imports and at the same time to meet contractual obligations payable in United States currency. Exports are Canada's largest source of United States dollars and it is a fundamental principle of exchange control that all exports from Canada to the United States and to all other countries outside the sterling area should produce United States dollars or foreign currencies which may be freely converted into United States dollars and that such United States dollars be made available to the Foreign Exchange Control Board. Payment for exports to countries in the sterling area may be obtained in any foreign currency or in Canadian dollars since the operation of similar Exchange Controls in those countries ensures that Canadian dollars used to pay for exports from Canada have been derived through properly authorized channels.

Export Licence

In order that the Board may ensure that Canada's exports do make available the proper kind and amounts of foreign exchange, it is necessary for it to know what exports are being made and when and by whom payment for such exports has been or will be received. Accordingly, a licence on the Board's Form B, which is consolidated with the export entry form required by the Canadian Customs, is required for every export of goods from Canada for which Customs ordinarily require an export entry. The form is not required in any other case. A Collector of Customs and Excise issues Form B on behalf of the Board at the time the relative Customs export entry is filed with him, although in some cases where the export is to a non-sterling area country and is not going to produce foreign exchange, the prior approval of an Authorized Dealer (a chartered bank) or of the Board is required.

The Board does not exercise any control over the kinds of goods which may be exported and its licence serves merely as a declaration that goods have been legally exported from Canada, of the kind and amount of payment which has been or is to be received and of the time when such payment has been or will be received. The Board's licence does not authorize any export which is prohibited or for which a licence or permit is required under any other law.

Payment for Exports

Exports to the United States and to all other countries outside the sterling area must ordinarily be made for payment within six months of shipment in United States dollars or foreign currencies which may be freely converted into United States dollars. Exports to the sterling area may be made for payment in sterling or in any other foreign currency or in Canadian dollars. NOTE: The "Sterling area" means and includes territories under the sovereignty, protection, suzerainty, or mandate of His Majesty (except Canada and Newfoundland) and also includes Egypt, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Iceland, the Faroe Islands, and Iraq.

Except with the special permission of the Board, goods already imported into Canada which have been or are to be paid for in United States funds may not be exported to a sterling area country other than for payment in United States dollars unless the goods have been processed in Canada.

When an exporter receives payment for an export in United States dollars (or a currency freely convertible into United States dollars), he is required to offer the foreign exchange for sale to his Authorized Dealer and to complete a declaration on the Board's Form C (Declaration of Foreign Exchange Offered for Sale) as evidence that he has obtained and made available to the Board the proper kind and amount of foreign exchange arising out of the export.

If price lists are issued in terms of Canadian dollars subject to eventual payment in United States dollars, the conversion rate which should be applied is the official buying rate for United States dollars quoted by the Board. It may be noted that at the time of writing, the official buying rate is 10% premium on U.S. funds and this rate has been in effect since the inception of Control. Therefore, if an exporter has an invoice for $100 Canadian currency, he must secure at least $90.90 United States currency in order that he may ultimately be credited with the face value of $100 Canadian currency when he sells his foreign exchange to the bank. Therefore, to arrive at the amount of United States dollar payable, the face value of the invoice in Canadian dollars should be discounted by 9.09%.

In connection with the requirement that exports to non-sterling area countries be paid for in U.S. funds, Authorized Dealers will pay spot rates for forward sales of United States dollars. Accordingly, a Canadian exporter can cover himself for forward exchange in United States dollars without any additional cost. Suppose a Canadian exporter has an export shipment amounting to $1,100 in Canadian funds, but converts this to $1,000 United States funds and draws a draft on his customer abroad for 90 days, and presents this draft to his bank in Canada for collection. At the same time that he presents this draft for collection, he can sell forward his $1,000 United States currency, which he will not receive for 90 days, for $1,100 Canadian currency.

Special Permits

As outlined above, the ordinary procedure with respect to exports of goods is that the exporter must account for and declare and sell to his Authorized Dealer as soon as received the foreign exchange received for each export. In order to facilitate the carrying on of ordinary commercial transactions and the continuance of the previous practices of certain types of exporters, the Board has, however, established various special procedures. In appropriate cases, special permits are issued by the Board under which the permit holder, instead of accounting for the proceeds of each individual shipment, furnishes the Board with periodic reports containing the information the Board requires. The Board's examiners may examine the permit holders' books and records in order to verify the reports made to the Board and obtain any other information required.

Export of Capital

One of the primary purposes of the Foreign Exchange Control Order is to prevent unauthorized exports of capital and exporters should note that, unless the approval of the Board has been obtained, it constitutes an export of capital and is an offence under the Order—

(a) To export from Canada to a country outside the sterling area and Newfoundland property for which no settlement has been or is to be received, or

(b) To sell any property for export to a country outside the sterling area or Newfoundland, or to sell any property exported from Canada to such a country, or to export from Canada to such a country any property which has been sold on terms which provide for payment of a price less than the fair value thereof or on terms which provide for payment more than six months after shipment, or

(c) To fail to take reasonable steps to collect a debt owing by a non-resident with respect to goods or other property exported or to be exported from Canada to a country outside the sterling area or Newfoundland or to grant an unreasonable extension of time for payment of any such debt.

Further Information

Full information respecting the various Foreign Exchange Control Board forms required to be filled out by Canadian exporters is contained in circulars which have been issued by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association from time to time. More detailed information concerning the Board's policy with respect to exports may be found in the Board's Bulletin No. 2 entitled "Exports of Goods" which may be obtained on request from any Office of the Board.

NATIONAL HARBOURS BOARD

The principal seaports of Canada are an integral and important part of Canada's extensive transportation system, forming the connecting links between the inland railway, waterway and highway carriers and the ocean carriers serving the trade routes between Canada and other countries. They have been developed in the interests of the country as a whole by the Government of Canada and are under the jurisdiction of the National Harbours Board, Ottawa. These seaports and facilities available thereat are as follows:—

WARTIME EXPORT PROGRAMMING IN CANADA

(As of May, 1945)

Compiled from Authoritative Sources

The wartime planning of exports covers not only the establishment of export quotas for materials in scarce supply, but a number of related policies which attempt to direct Canadian exports to particular destinations and areas. The planning that now exists has developed step by step as war shortages have become more serious and extended to more and more commodities. One of the main objectives has been to coordinate the distribution of Canadian supplies of critical materials with that of other supplying countries, attempting to achieve the least possible disruption to established trade and trade channels. This coordinated planning extends to many items which, while not critical in the war effort, are related to the most essential needs of the civilian economy. Other items of less essentiality but still important to our trade are programmed without direct relation to programmes of other countries, although in harmony with their policies. The aim is to ensure an equitable distribution of such scarce goods as are still available between the domestic market and the various export markets. The attempt has always been made to ensure at least token shipments to established markets for Canadian products in order to maintain trade contacts, wherever this is possible without injury to the war effort.

The extent and the detail of Canadian planning has been increased by the obligation on our part to share a portion of the burden of supplying liberated areas in Europe and Africa as well as to contribute to supplies being purchased for relief by UNRRA. Many other countries also have had their normal sources of supply cut off by war developments and must have supplies directed to them, so that in total these abnormal demands on United Nations resources merely for essential purposes become onerous. While in most cases such countries will again turn to their past sources after possibly a short postwar interval, the possibility of continuing trade in many items is not overlooked but is kept as a secondary consideration.

Aside from the countries which are faced with the problem of replacing lost sources of supply, many of our large normal markets find it necessary to prepare programmes of import requirements in order to ensure that adequate supplies will be forthcoming and in order to be in a position to distribute fairly such supplies as do arrive among their various importers. In order not only to assist these countries, but also to ensure that established sources of supply in Canada are not overlooked, it is incumbent upon Canada to give official advice of the materials they may expect from us. The danger to such established trade is intensified wherever the importing country finds it necessary to make bulk purchases of any or all commodities through the medium of an official purchasing agency or mission. With the best will in the world on the part of such missions it is all too possible for them, as a result of simple expediency, to secure elsewhere supplies that have in the past been obtained in Canada and are still available here.

The responsibility for planning exports along these lines for most commodities falls in the first instance on the Export Planning Division of the Department of Trade and Commerce. This Division works very closely with the Supply Division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and with the various administrators and controllers in establishing schedules of export quotas and export policy generally. The formal programmes may be either country by country quotas on the export of a specified commodity (usually referred to as a commodity programme) or they may be a statement of a fairly complete list of goods estimated to be available for any given country. These programmes are reviewed and passed upon by an Inter-departmental Committee on which are representatives of all the Departments that may be interested. Consequently if any factor of a political or financial nature is involved it receives full consideration in dealing with the programme.

In addition to the formal programmes, certain spot requests for specific materials may be presented to the Committee if they are large enough to impinge on relatively scarce supplies. Requests from UNRRA form the large part of such requirements, and indeed the committee may concern itself with virtually any problem related to export trade.

Commodity Programmes

Such raw materials as are under export quota are usually allocated by international combined planning bodies. Canada is represented when such decisions are made. However, in the case of raw materials it is more usual to have individual applications reviewed on their merits and to permit exports for uses that correspond to those that would be permitted in Canada.

It has always been the policy to keep the number of items under formal export quotas to a minimum. Most exporters of manufactured goods, particularly branded articles, must of necessity programme their exports themselves. They are faced with a shortage of material, labour and plant capacity, and in their own interests attempt to make the most equitable distribution among domestic and foreign agents and representatives. Only if political considerations are involved which would be unknown to the company may it become necessary for government interference in such plans, and even then the desired results can usually be accomplished by informal agreement with the manufacturers concerned.

The commodity programmes that it has been found necessary to establish are not all of one pattern but vary almost from commodity to commodity. At one extreme, each separate manufacturer or exporter may be given a schedule of quotas for each of his markets and the granting of permits to each exporter and to each country may be limited accordingly. At the other extreme, each individual exporter may be advised of a total quantity of his product that may be exported to any destination he chooses. Again there may be a schedule of quotas established for individual countries, with the share falling to any one exporter depending upon the order in which export permit applications are received. When any such quotas are established the authorities in the importing country are notified, usually through the Trade Commissioner Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Commodity export programmes may be based either directly or indirectly upon exports made during a base period, on surveys of foreign markets' requirements, upon surveys of manufacturers' export capacity and their own wishes as to destination, or on a combination of these.

In order to ensure the necessary raw material to implement a commodity programme that is being established, the Department of Trade and Commerce acts as a claimant agency on the Department of Munitions and Supply, paralleling the Wartime Prices and Trade Board claims for domestic manufacture. The decision as to the portion to be used for export as against domestic production is made between the two claimant agencies and the authority having jurisdiction over the raw materials in question. In addition it is the responsibility of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to assess the manufacturing capacity in the light of such other shortages as labour and fabricating facilities. The export programme thus tentatively agreed upon is presented to the Inter-departmental Committee as indicated above for its review and approval.

The administration of commodity programmes once they have been established is generally speaking in the hands of the Export Permit Branch of the Department of Trade and Commerce. The quota is usually for a calendar year. If any balance remains unused at the end of the year it is not carried forward but rather a new programme is established. The charge against a given quota is made at the time the Export Permit is granted. Shipment may be made at any time during the life of this permit, even though it extends into a following quota year. Permits may be renewed even though the renewal takes place in the new year; in this case the renewal may or may not be charged to the new quota depending on the particular commodity in question.

Inasmuch as one object of quotas is to enable the importing country to make an intelligent distribution of the supplies it receives, it will be understood that in general the import control of the country of destination is closely related to Canadian export control. The actual mechanics of this relationship vary somewhat from country to country. In general for goods under such quota schedules an import license or comparable document must be presented by the exporter before an Export Permit is issued. When applying for a renewal of an Export Permit under such circumstances, it is advisable for the exporter to ensure that the original import license is still valid or has been revalidated. In case of Colonies in the British West Indies, the import license shows the quota year against which the license is to be charged. These licenses may be issued in advance of the quota year and may also be revalidated for a following quota year. In such cases an export permit will be renewed in the new year only if the import license has been revalidated.

Country Programmes

Country export programmes are usually based on a compilation of estimated requirements of all kinds from all sources prepared by the importing country. This compilation may request stated portions of goods from Canada or it may be a programme of requirements from Canada only. As mentioned above they arise from the necessity of ensuring adequate supplies. They may be the basis for seeking Mutual Aid, or they may be prepared by such countries as the French Colonies or liberated European areas where established economic connections have been broken and supplies must be found from new sources. Or again they may be merely an attempt of an importing country to keep its economy on an even keel in the face of material and shipping shortages. In any case the Canadian programme that is prepared is merely a statement of what is officially estimated to be available for export to that country. It is not a schedule of quotas as in the case of commodity programmes except that the relevant items of established commodity programmes are included in the list and are designated as quotas.

The statement of available Canadian supplies is announced to the government concerned, usually through the Trade Commissioner Service. If commercial trade is possible this Service is in a position to foster its consummation much along the lines of peace-time procedure. If a particular commodity is being bulk purchased or if the importing country can only buy through official agencies as is the case in liberated Europe, the Service assists the agency in locating suppliers and assists Canadian exporters in negotiating sales.

In connection with country programmes a special word should be added concerning the twenty Latin American Republics and the Decentralization Plan by which exports to these markets have been controlled. Originally this plan was a method of control that directly related the volume of export permits to the availability of shipping, at the same time giving the import authority the final choice of the types and quantities of goods it would receive. The United States and Canada provided estimates of supply for all the various commodities that might be shipped, and a monthly estimate of the probable available shipping space was also given. The country concerned then issued Import Recommendations within these dual limits and such a Recommendation was required before a Canadian export permit would be issued. Initially this plan covered virtually all exports to the area. Now, however, the shipping aspect has been practically removed and Recommendations are required for only a limited list of items. For these items estimates of supply are still prepared, and Import Recommendations issued in accordance therewith are still necessary for the granting of an export permit.

Supplementing these various methods of export direction is the ad hoc assistance of the Department of Trade and Commerce in dealing with individual requests of special urgency and requirements that it has not been possible to programme in advance. The support given to such requests by the Department and by the Inter-departmental Committee varies with the urgency, and in general all authorities cooperate in attempting to make available the quantity that the circumstances warrant.

Post War

Such in brief is an outline of the direction that is being given to Canadian exports at the present time. As the war appears to be fast approaching a successful conclusion, this article can hardly end without some reference to the future of export planning. However, it is difficult to say authoritatively anything more precise than that export controls, quotas and programmes will be discontinued as soon as there is any end to the need that called them into being. Of course it can be foreseen that many commodities required in large volume to rebuild and reorganize a devastated world may continue to require programming for some months or even a year or two after the end of the Pacific war. Indeed, such programming might involve not merely independent action on the part of Canada but coordinated planning of world supplies. Nevertheless, commodity programmes and quotas will end one by one as supplies become easier. This easing of supplies and revival of world trade will likewise end the necessity of country programmes in the not too distant future.

The ultimate goal is to remove all interference with private commercial trade. It is nevertheless likely that the troubled post-war world will require active government assistance to international trade, but the planning and other attention involved will be completely opposite to the restrictions of today. It will be directed to enabling private business to attend to its own expansion to the benefit of all Canadians.

EXPORT METHODS, FINANCING, PRICE QUOTATIONS, COSTS AND EMPIRE TARIFF PREFERENCES

FIVE METHODS OF DOING EXPORT BUSINESS

On the following pages will be found articles by experienced Canadian exporters on methods of conducting export business before the war. Since the outbreak of hostilities many changes have occurred and exchange, shipping and import and export trade are controlled. It was thought, however, that as supplies became available and trading restrictions were relaxed this background of information would be valuable and the various methods could be modified to meet new developments

These articles do not include all known methods, but they do cover the majority of recognized methods that so far have proved successful in Canada. Many firms operate combinations of these methods, depending on the types of markets to which they are selling. Each method should be considered in the light of the characteristics of one's own business and of the possible proportions to which the export side of it may grow.

The five methods range from the comparatively simple task of handling a highly specialized line by mail and the co-operation of Trade Commissioners to the handling of a very wide range of articles all used in the same trade by means of the establishment of wholesale branches of the Canadian house abroad.

SEE INDEX OF SUBJECTS, PAGE 202

Each method has its dangers and difficulties as well as advantages, and each is specially suited to certain general classes of business or types of distribution in export markets. No matter what method is adopted there is little doubt that a personal investigation of overseas markets by a principal or chief executive of the Canadian firm is the best preliminary in the development of successful export business. The initial costs of an investigation of this type may seem high at the time, but in most cases expenditures of this kind have proved to be a successful investment.

Method No. 1

Development of an Export Trade Through Branches in Other Countries, Owned by the Parent Exporting Manufacturer in Canada

(Suitable for companies with a diversified product, most or all of which can find extensive export markets subjected to world-wide competition.)

The manufacturer who is endeavouring to build up an export trade to provide an increased and permanent outlet for his products and not simply looking for a channel through which to dispose of some surplus stock provided for domestic trade or to take up some plant capacity temporarily available should consider carefully the advisability of doing so through his own branches abroad, provided, of course, that his line is of a nature to warrant this consideration.

In contemplating the organization of a branch in a foreign country a great many conditions require to be taken into consideration. The territory should therefore be carefully surveyed to ascertain not only the present demand for his product but the possibility of increase in this demand for the future and how this increase is to come about. The state of the local industry and the competition therefrom, as well as competition from other sources requires to be looked into; also the possibility of securing a sufficient number of dealers of a satisfactory type to handle the lines; the general financial standing of these dealers and their attitude toward meeting obligations when due. Study should also be made of local preferences and prejudices, as it is surprising the influence these have in some parts of the world. Customs Tariffs and the possibility of revisions thereto; location for branch headquarters at a point where there are ample facilities at reasonable cost for the reception and storage of bulk stocks, as well as convenient and adequate transportation service for distribution, also require to be looked into. These, and a number of other matters which will suggest themselves, should be carefully investigated in order to give the question intelligent consideration and arrive at a decision.

If, after investigation, the manufacturer is satisfied that a sufficient demand for his product exists in a certain country and is also satisfied that conditions generally would warrant consideration being given to the establishing of a branch selling organization there, then the advantages and disadvantages of the branch system will require to be carefully weighed.

Marketing through a branch selling organization presents several advantages:

1.—The entire effort of the selling organization is concentrated on the one line and there are therefore no diverting interests as is frequently the case where a jobbing house handles a large range of goods. The manufacturer's products under the branch system cannot at any time be treated as a side line to be ignored when goods returning a greater margin of profit can be sold. Travellers and salesmen are not tempted to follow the line of least resistance as is possible where they have optional lines to offer to a dealer.

2.—If a line is one requiring service of any kind, the manufacturer can ensure his own and his customers' interests being properly cared for by providing a service staff having a thorough and expert knowledge of his goods, and it is recognized that an efficient service, where required, brings increased trade.

3.—A branch selling organization enables a manufacturer to keep more closely in touch with the requirements of the market and therefore be in a position to meet, or even anticipate, changing demands on the part of the purchasing public.

4.—In operating through a branch selling organization, the manufacturer can plan and carry on an advertising and selling campaign best suited to the sale of his lines and is free to take such action as he may consider necessary to meet any unusual conditions which may arise from time to time without having to depend upon or to consider first the interests of the importing jobber.

5.—From the standpoint of financial risk, instead of having one or two large accounts, the manufacturer will have a number of smaller accounts scattered throughout the country. In the opinion of many, a number of smaller accounts is an advantage as, after all, there is something to be said in favour of not putting the eggs all in one basket.

6.—It is reasonable to expect that the expense involved in the operating of a branch selling organization could be met by the additional margin obtained through selling direct to the dealers instead of to a large importing jobber. Even if the Branch could not do better than break even on its operations, the manufacturer would still have the advantage of his manufacturing profit on a larger volume.

7.—An esprit de corps can be developed which is a valuable asset in any selling organization.

There are, of course, some disadvantages, for instance:

1.—During a seasonal slackness or a period of temporary depression, when the demand for the manufacturer's particular product may drop off, the selling organization is handicapped through not having other lines with which to fill in.

2.—The necessity of carrying stocks which, in dealing with a large importing jobber, would very likely have been sold outright. This carrying of stocks also involves the making of provision against obsolescence.

3.—The handling and following up of numerous smaller accounts.

There are no doubt other disadvantages, some more applicable to one line than to another; however, the advantages of operating through a branch selling organization would appear to much more than offset the disadvantages, assuming, of course, that the manufacturer's line is sufficiently large and varied, the demand sufficient, and conditions generally favourable to operating in this way.

Except for the Chief Executive and perhaps one or two key men, an overseas branch should be staffed by men who speak the language of the country and who have an intimate knowledge of the country, its requirements, the people and their customs. The Branch Manager, or Chief Executive, should be one who is thoroughly familiar with the Company's products and policies and one who possesses good sound judgment. Located as he usually is, thousands of miles away from headquarters, he is frequently called upon to deal with important problems requiring prompt attention which cannot be conveniently or adequately discussed with his Head Office by telegraph or even by telephone, which is now available.

Several Canadian companies are already operating through branch houses abroad. No doubt any of them would be willing to assist other manufacturers contemplating operating in the same way by supplying whatever information they may have available.

Method No. 2

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents or Representatives Visited at Intervals by Executive of Canadian Exporting Manufacturer

(An excellent method that has worked out successfully in many lines as it provides for gradual growth and expansion, coupled with establishment of close personal relations with representatives and informing travel by export executive and an interchange of visits to the plant by representatives. This should be read in close conjunction with Method No. 3, with which it is closely allied.)

From a sales standpoint there are many advantages in having a resident agent, particularly if it is possible to have him visit the plant, get thoroughly acquainted with the product by closely following up through all stages of manufacture, meet the personnel of the Company, familiarize himself with the method of packing and general handling of export shipments.

A few of these advantages are as follows:

(1) A resident agent can approach customers with more confidence in the product as he is able to converse freely in the language of the country. From personal experience in the Far East and Continent of Europe, have found in many cases difficulty in getting anywhere on account of not being able to speak the language.

(2) A resident agent can keep principals posted on competitive lines and demands for necessary improvements to meet market conditions.

(3) Is in the position to revise and add to mailing lists of already established and prospective customers.

(4) Being in close touch with the financial standing of customers is able to take action on principal's behalf in the event of collection difficulties. In this connection might mention we give our resident agents authority to act on our behalf. If draft is refused, instead of costly cables and delays, it is immediately referred to the resident agent for further instructions.

(5) Is able to transfer shipments in event of disputes. In one or two cases, after shipment had left Canada, it was necessary to hold up on account of credit, which was taken care of by cable and turned over to resident agent for disposal elsewhere.

(6) Is in the position to investigate orders or enquiries which may be received by principals direct.

The advantages of visiting resident agents, as the writer sees them, are many; preferably the President, Vice-President, General Manager, or Sales Manager, as in most cases it is best to make a decision on the spot so to speak. Naturally it is better that this executive should be in close touch with the Export Department.

Visits of this kind bring the line up to date, establish confidence between agents and principals, in addition to getting first hand information as to the class of house from which orders are being received.

Might I repeat again it is very desirable if possible, to have the agent visit the factory. The executive can very often obtain information regarding the sale of competitive lines which the agent does not always seem able to obtain. Manufacturing information can very often be picked up. A general size-up of the agent's ability and his connections can be intelligently made. How often have we sized up a man by correspondence and on making his acquaintance found a totally different person than we had pictured.

In some cases the resident agent is the most economical way of conducting export business, providing, of course, you have a real live agent. There is not any definite rule that I know of to select agents or representatives. I recall one time in Australia, of interviewing a resident agent who was not interested, but later on was approached by the same firm's branch in another city, by one of their Directors who saw possibilities in our line. The firm in question turned out to be live representatives.

There seems to be some element of luck in selecting agents or representatives. In order to avoid liability it might be better to classify as resident representatives not resident agents.

Method No. 3

Development of Export Trade Through Resident Agents Abroad With No Personal Visits by a Representative of the Canadian Exporting Manufacturer

(A very large number of Canadian manufacturers use this method, gradually moving towards Method No. 2, which supplements and strengthens it.)

The policy of appointing a resident Agent abroad without any personal supervision from a representative is one which is attended with many risks and much dissatisfaction unless preceded beforehand by a very careful investigation into:

(1) The standing of the individual or Company in the business community.
(2) His or their financial responsibility.
(3) Integrity.
(4) Business capabilities.
(5) Number and kind of other lines carried.

Too often the manufacturer looking for export business will accept the first application received for an agency arrangement, without making the ordinary investigations which would be made upon receipt of a similar application on the domestic market. Even at the present time applications are constantly being received by exporters from many bright and well-intentioned people who, after seeing or hearing of a new line, think they can sell it against old and established importing agencies who have probably controlled their market on this line for a great many years and who if approached by some obscure individual with a competitive line would give it scant consideration. It is, therefore, vitally necessary that the business standing of an individual or company should be known, in order for your product to receive fair and impartial consideration.

This will also protect the intending exporter from the unscrupulous type of individual who sends in his application under an assumed company name, on very elaborately got up business note paper, with the intention of obtaining a good set of samples for nothing.

What emphasis should be placed on financial responsibility will depend entirely on whether the agent is going to act on a purely commission basis, merely soliciting orders and passing them on to the manufacturer for shipping and financing, or to buy direct himself and in turn resell to the trade.

The integrity of an agent should be unquestionable, because any suspicion of sharp practices would immediately reflect on the company appointing the agent, and result in a definite restriction and loss of trade.

The business capability of the proposed agent should also be scrutinized; there should be a reputation for being thoroughly acquainted with all lines carried, ability to promote sales, judicious in the selection of customers and the granting of credit risks. Much profitable export business can easily be turned into serious and heavy losses unless the latter requirement is carefully followed.

Then it is very essential to know the number and kind of other lines carried, to ascertain if they are in any way complementary or competitive. It may be that the applicant is already carrying too many lines and it has been found in practice that there is a tendency to push only those lines easy to sell, or giving the greatest remuneration. Even if the agent is thoroughly reliable, it is difficult to become thoroughly acquainted with every item carried, with the result that the added new lines may suffer in comparison with the older ones. Often an agent will undertake to carry a competitive line just to prevent some other agent more favourably placed from obtaining it, sending in just sufficient orders to create the impression that an effort is being made to place the line on the market, but at the same time actually throttling its development.

There is no difficulty in obtaining resident agents overseas as an advertisement in any export Journal will bring a host of applicants, the majority of whom will guarantee to handle the line offered in the most efficient manner. The problem to solve is to be able to pick out from the replies received the one who will handle your line most successfully.

A much safer way is to entrust your agent problem to the Canadian Trade Commissioners, seeking their advice after giving them full information about your product.

It is not to be suggested that the right person or company will always be selected and in order to guard against errors of judgment and to protect them as far as possible, it would be advisable to limit the contract of any new agent appointed to one or two years, during which time you will have ample opportunity to check up and study the results obtained. If not satisfactory, the contract can then be broken off at the end of the stipulated period.

From the above it is very obvious that only the best type of individual or company should be chosen as your representative and the success or failure to open up an export market will depend very materially upon this.

The decision to appoint an individual or a company will depend to a great extent on the nature of the commodity to be exported, the distribution desired, and the extent of the market. In some countries it may be advisable to confine your agency to a large company who are in touch with all wholesale outlets, and while this may restrict the distribution, it has this compensation that credit risk is practically reduced to a minimum, and in some cases goods are paid for immediately upon receipt at the usual cash terms. Should it be the policy of the exporter to place his goods through as many outlets as possible, then the individual agent provides the best possible medium because he buys nothing for himself but simply solicits orders for the manufacturer and the greatest advantage lies in the ability of such a man to get business for his principals, from all possible buyers in his field. Another added advantage is that being constantly on the ground, he is able to take immediate advantage of every opportunity the moment it arises, and to adjust troubles and complaints that are almost certain to arise in the conduct of any business, whether it is foreign or domestic. Furthermore, there is bound to arise the question of extended and disputed drafts and he can safeguard payments and collections for his principals.

The agent's duties are not confined only to the securing of orders and some of his time will have to be spent in adjusting difficulties as they arise, also explaining away injudicious letters from the home office, for oftentimes a good connection is lost through a lack of tact and courtesy on the part of the sender.

The chief disadvantage in appointing an agent without personal supervision lies in the almost impossibility of making him or them acquainted with changes in business policy by means of a letter, no matter how well constructed it may be. It is then that close personal contact can explain away in a few minutes any misgivings held, what otherwise may take several letters spread over a considerable period. When export business is being operated at little or no profit it is difficult to explain by letter why an advertising allowance cannot be made or unreasonable claims accepted.

In summing up, it can safely be said that satisfactory business can be obtained by this method, although of course it will always lack that undefinable something which always comes with personal contact.

Method No. 4

The Development of Export Trade Through Export Merchants, Export Buying Houses or Indent Houses

(This method or really two methods in one, with many similar characteristics, offers a wide field for certain varieties of products but if used solely should be chosen with the utmost discretion. The Indent House Method can fit in by consent with Methods two and three and can be attempted simultaneously.

Co-operation with reliable indent houses in suitable cases provides a means of training members of manufacturers' staffs in export technique and provides specialized selling and personal contacts in export markets while retaining the identity of manufacturers' goods through to the customer.

In the "Export Merchants" discussion prospective exporters would do well to ponder seriously over the disadvantages mentioned.)

There are many manufacturers in Great Britain who have been able to secure a splendid volume of business overseas without ever having had even an export department of their own. They have secured this business through London houses operating as Export Merchants or through London Indent firms.

EXPORT MERCHANTS operate really as Export Wholesale Houses. They make an arrangement with a Manufacturer by which they will have the control of anything he makes that may be shipped overseas. If the Manufacturer receives an enquiry from abroad, he refers it to this Export Merchant. The Merchant buys for cash from the Manufacturer and turns around and quotes the merchandise to firms overseas at a price that will give him a profit. He takes all the credit responsibility and even arranges for proper distribution in any market where there would seem to be a demand for this particular product. He has Representatives who travel to different countries in the world and in this way keeps in touch with his connections abroad.

There are many advantages to the Manufacturer from handling his export business in this manner:

1. It costs him nothing to sell his goods. He may at times find it necessary to supply something in the way of samples but this is likely to be a small matter and if it really amounts to something, he can usually arrange to supply the samples at regular prices, less a sample discount.

2. He sells for cash and has no credit risk. Manufacturers are often concerned and rightly so, about the credit standing of firms overseas who may wish to buy their goods. Selling to the Export Merchant, he gets his money even sooner than for domestic sales.

3. He avoids the necessity of having an export department in his business. The Export Merchant looks after all details of shipping, insurance and invoicing and all the Manufacturer has to do is to ship his goods to Seaboard as directed and submit ordinary domestic invoices. The overseas correspondence is conducted by the Export Merchant, who is competent to look after this even if it be in a foreign language.

4. He increases the volume of business passing through his plant and in this way lowers his unit cost of production. This enables him to compete more successfully in his own market.

The disadvantages of this method are not great. There are one or two features that should be considered:

1. He will probably not know his customers overseas and if for any reason, the Export Merchant breaks his connection, he may lose his overseas business. However, the Export Merchant is not likely to do this so long as he gets good treatment from the Manufacturer. It costs money to develop a market and no one wishes to have to do it with a new product if he already has one established.

2. He will need to make sure that the Export Merchant has a distinct possibility to get business for it has been known to happen that representation of a line has been gotten to keep it off the market. For that reason, it should only be given for an initial period of not too long so that if business does not result, he can take other means to get it.

INDENT FIRMS are really Buying Houses or Purchasing Houses in one country for firms located in other countries overseas. Many overseas firms prefer to have all their business attended to by their own buying offices located in centres of countries where manufacturing industries are plentiful. Such firms as these are often a good means of getting manufactured goods introduced to their overseas clients.

1. They usually buy for first class firms only.
2. They pay cash for all purchases.
3. They attend to all details of shipping, insurance, invoicing and correspondence.

On the other hand:

1. They take no responsibility for sales at all but simply place orders on definite instructions received from their clients.

2. They buy only for their own clients and it may be possible there are other firms in overseas countries who might be interested in the goods. The indent houses will not offer the goods for sale to other than their own clients. Their distribution therefore is limited unless a Manufacturer is dealing with a number of Indent Houses operating in the same overseas markets.

The number of Export Merchants and Indent Firms in Canada has been limited, due probably to the fact that it is only comparatively recently that Canadian Manufactured goods have been shipped in volume and variety to overseas markets. It is only reasonable to expect that their numbers will increase and in this way, there will be offered to Canadian Manufacturers a method of securing export business that is sound, economical and safe.

Method No. 5

Development of Export Trade Direct by Mail

(This method though useful for highly specialized products marketed to well-rated and substantial customers is fraught with many dangers unless subjected to the closest analysis. It is true it grows gradually to the point of becoming exactly like Method No. 3, but the initial stages of attempting to do business direct by mail, without previous intense and discriminating selection of risks, are full of pitfalls and form a pretext for the propagation of many useless schemes.)

Many Canadian industries, organized primarily to supply their domestic market, do not have the large organization nor the facilities necessary to maintain branches or even direct agents handling only their products in foreign markets.

In these days of specialization, the products of many plants must sometimes be sold in the export markets by commission agents handling kindred lines in order to spread the selling expense over sufficient volume to make export sales profitable. In fact, modern practice has resulted in many plants making only one particular line of goods often of interest only to some one trade or profession. Often this means a field so restricted it does not pay the producer to seek export business through ordinary channels. However, such specialized lines usually have the advantage of being of special interest and usefulness to certain definitely known trades or professions. Lists of prospects for such lines can be obtained and trade solicited in foreign, almost as easily as in the domestic market. It is possible in this way to eliminate expensive selling costs and create a demand for such goods as will permit some responsible agent to stock or supply them profitably.

Of course, wherever this is practical, a selling agent right on the ground is always much better and more satisfactory. A good agent can create connections not obtainable by mail and can always learn why prospects are not interested or correct any misunderstanding which no amount of correspondence might bring out. It is no different in foreign markets than at home. Every purchaser takes the easiest way and will usually pay more to be relieved of all details of which he knows little or nothing.

The local agent has special advantages over direct-by-mail solicitation in countries using other than the English language. A good agent will speak fluently the one or more languages used and can usually translate special instructions into English for the manufacturer, thus overcoming many chances of misinterpretation.

Even if carefully written and checked over, transcriptions from English to other languages are sometimes misleading. Often the correct version does not convey the idea or thought as well as if the letter were written in the dialect peculiar to the country in which the prospect resides.

Particularly in financial matters, the agent can secure reports, approach only good accounts and help with collections when necessary.

But in spite of all these drawbacks it is possible to do a good and profitable export business direct by mail with lines which could in no other way be exported to advantage. Goods of exceptional interest and usefulness to some definitely known trade or profession—possibly not ordinarily obtainable except on special order or which must be delivered in fresh condition. Especially such goods as can be sent by Parcel Post.

The first step is to secure an agent to handle deliveries and lists of interested users. This can usually be done with the aid of the Canadian Trade Commissioner in the market to be tried.

The Commissioner should be given full particulars of the product—samples where possible—and suggestions as to the class of trade likely to be interested. He will suggest an agent and the best source for obtaining lists of prospects. Usually he can secure good lists for the exporter. As an official Canadian representative, the Trade Commissioner often has access to records and information not ordinarily obtainable. In fact, he can usually give better advice and suggestions about the market he represents than could be obtained by months of direct investigation. It is his duty to assist in the sale of any Canadian product in his market. No better corps of expert salesmen could be had at any price than is available to every Canadian exporter.

Having arranged for handling deliveries and secured a list of prospects, a carefully prepared campaign for that particular market should be worked out. Letters should always be in the language of that market. When other than English, such letters should be very carefully translated. If time permits, it is always best to submit the suggested series of letters to the Trade Commissioner for O.K. Translations are often much clearer and get better results if in the particular style or dialect in use in the prospect's country.

Full and complete description—good illustrations, showing the goods and their uses—are essential to best results. Even if it does not pay to translate catalogues or circulars, sufficient explanation should be given in the letters to make their advantages and uses clear to the prospect.

Arrangements with the agent should be made to either stock or obtain goods promptly a demand has been created so as not to lose the benefit of direct solicitation. With the help of the Trade Commissioner, a good agent should be arranged for who will supply the demand. With reasonable prospects the agent can be induced to purchase some stock or if sent on consignment to guarantee payment as the goods are sold. Once the agent is convinced there is a profitable demand he will undertake selling on his own account.

There is no doubt that many Canadian products could be exported in this way if reasonable time and care were given all the necessary details. Export markets are particularly desirable to most Canadian manufacturers to permit increased volume production—not always possible in a comparatively restricted home market. Even if such exports are sold close to actual costs, they are a great advantage in absorbing overhead costs and creating steady employment of sometimes highly trained staffs.

One thing should be kept in mind always—for the good of all Canadian exporters. Once foreign trade has been solicited, be prepared to make prompt deliveries of thoroughly dependable goods offering good value. A manufacturer who solicits foreign business only while his trade is slack in Canada and fails to give good service on foreign business during rush times in domestic trade is creating a very bad opinion in foreign markets, not only of his own concern but on all his fellow exporters as well.

Let every Canadian exporter maintain the good reputation created by our Trade Commissioners and by our most successful exporters by good service, reliable goods and fair dealing.

FINANCING CANADIAN EXPORT TRADE UNDER WORLD CONDITIONS EXISTING MAY 1, 1945

The following statement kindly prepared by C. K. Highmoor, Supervisor, Foreign Department, Canadian Bank of Commerce, outlines the services available through Canadian banks in connection with export business, and deals with export conditions as at May 1, 1945, with pre-war practices and procedure amended to meet general wartime conditions. It also touches briefly on financing of lengthy duration, Export Credits Insurance Act, and International Monetary Agreements.

"Every experienced Canadian exporter will agree that the sale of Canadian goods or services to a country outside Canada is not completed satisfactorily until the full amount of the anticipated proceeds have been placed at his disposal in Canada and in such form that without any encumbrance they can be used in Canada to pay the wages, materials and other expenses which went into the creation of the goods or services sold. It takes time, effort and materials to produce goods which will compete in other lands with the products of other countries and no matter what care is taken in the preparation of the goods, in their prompt and safe delivery, and in following through to see that the goods are satisfactory to the eventual user, the benefit to the producer and to Canada is likely to be lost if similar care is not taken in the manner in which the proceeds are collected from abroad.

All Canadian banks operate Foreign Departments designed to facilitate transactions with other countries, whether these involve payments abroad or collections abroad, and exporters, particularly those expanding their activities into new fields abroad, should avail themselves of the services of their banks in guarding against errors and oversights which can be made in this important matter of obtaining payment in satisfactory form from purchasers of their products, whether in near or distant lands.

Price Quotations

Exporters seeking buyers abroad are free to express their prices in any form or in any currency which they may desire or find convenient, though naturally must take into account also the convenience of the buyer. The currency in which they collect the proceeds, however, is a matter in which they must be guided by the requirements of the Canadian Foreign Exchange Control Board which during the war has made certain stipulations in that respect and these are liable to change from time to time.

In general, goods or services sold to the sterling area—which is briefly described as 'territories under the sovereignty, protection, suzerainty or mandate of His Majesty (except Canada and Newfoundland) and Egypt, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Iceland, the Faroe Islands and Iraq'—can be paid for by a transfer to Canada of sterling or Canadian dollars from that area. In general, also, buyers in that area are prohibited from remitting to Canada any other currency except their own when freely saleable in London.

In connection with shipments to other countries, whether members of the United Nations or neutral countries, payment must be received either in United States dollars or in currencies which are freely convertible into United States dollars in the United States.

It follows from the above that there is some simplicity in expressing quotations to buyers in the sterling area either in Canadian dollars or in sterling, and to other countries, in United States dollars. Should a request be made to a buyer, say, in Australia, to remit United States dollars, it will likely lead to delay and confusion, whereas if a request is made to a buyer, say, in the United States, to remit in Canadian dollars, this will likely have to be returned to the sender to be exchanged for a remittance in United States exchange—also causing delay and probable loss due to exchange fluctuations.

Clarity of Contracts

For the reasons explained in the above paragraph and for many others, it is most desirable that the contract entered into between seller and buyer shall be clear beyond doubt as to the expense included in the selling price and as to the currency and manner in which the transfer of money from abroad to Canada shall take place. Apart from the sales cost of the goods at the point of production in Canada, there are of course other costs, such as rail and ocean freight, marine and war risk insurance, export licence fees, possible storage, transhipment, inspection, wharfage, forwarding, and other similar costs with which every exporter is familiar, but also financing costs such as collection fees, interest, revenue stamps, and sometimes other costs such as telegraphic fees, protest fees, etc, which can be important and may be overlooked.

It is possible for many of these to be foreseen, avoided, overcome, or at least provided for, at the time the contract is entered into, or in advance to last over a long period of time in the prospective dealings with an overseas buyer. In these latter respects Canadian banks can be most helpful and should be freely consulted.

Methods of Payment

There are a number of methods by which payment can be received for shipments abroad and each has its appropriate place in a given set of circumstances.

The simplest, from the Canadian seller's point of view, is a remittance through banking channels at the time of acceptance of an order, in the appropriate currency, but this is a method which would be considered unreasonable by many buyers under normal conditions and one which few exporters would be able or care to require, particularly from firms of standing who would probably be unwilling to so employ their capital, having in mind that the goods may take some time to be prepared and shipped. Then again, under their own Exchange Control regulations, they may be prohibited from making payment until the goods have either landed in their own countries or at least are afloat.

A variation of this method is by direct remittance in the appropriate currency through banking channels when the goods have arrived, within a stated time thereafter, at time of shipment, or at some period mutually arranged between buyer and seller.

Another method is by drawing a draft on the buyers of the goods or their agents in the country of destination or elsewhere and lodging the draft for collection with a bank in Canada with or without shipping documents attached and either awaiting the returns of the collection by mail, airgraph, air mail, or cable, or by borrowing thereagainst in Canada at the time the draft is lodged with the Canadian bank.

Still another method is to call for a Commercial Letter of Credit issued by the buyer's bankers and forwarded by mail to the seller or advised by cable through a bank in Canada.

Financial Standing of Buyer Abroad

It is obviously important for the seller of Canadian goods to know something of the standing of buyers abroad not only from the point of view of moral reputation but also from a financial point of view and before considering the completion of any contract with strangers abroad it is desirable that inquiries should be made to that end. The Canadian banks, Government departments, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and other organizations have considerable information on the standing of firms abroad and can always assist in this respect even if inquiries have to be made abroad by mail or by wire. Upon this information depends to no little extent the choice of methods by which payment is to be sought and which in turn requires thought as to the extension of credit which is to be granted. This in turn depends on the seller's own financial ability to wait, the financial ability of the buyer to pay, the custom of the market into which the goods are to proceed, and the Exchange Control regulations both of that market and our own.

Collections

Collections can be expressed in any currency but under present conditions are usually expressed in the currency agreed upon between buyer and seller according to his contract and as required under Control Board regulations. They can call for payment on demand, at sight, or at an appropriate term, such as 30 days sight, 60 days sight, 90 days sight, etc. They can be clean, i.e. not supported by any documents, or can have attached whatever shipping documents are desired.

Obviously, if a company attaches a complete set of invoices, negotiable bills of lading, marine and war risk insurance certificates or policies for an adequate amount, and other documents required for the release of the goods in the country of destination, and these documents are endorsed where required by the seller, the collection controls and retains the ownership of the goods until by permission they are released or until the draft is paid.

When delivering a collection to a bank, the amount of the draft must be clearly expressed in words and figures, the name and address of the drawee must be clearly given, the revenue stamps attached, and the bank must clearly understand whether the collection is to go forward by ordinary mail or air mail. The bank must also be placed in a position to give appropriate instructions to its correspondent abroad and these instructions should cover points which are liable to come up when the draft gets to its destination. The following are examples of some of the instructions which might be given in varying circumstances:

Hold for arrival of goods.
Protest for non-acceptance.
Protest for non-payment.
Collect bank charges.
Waive bank charges if refused by drawee.
In case of need, refer to . . . . and advise immediately by mail (by cable).
Collect at selling rate for demand drafts on . . . . . . Remit proceeds by cable at our expense.
Allow drawee interest at . . .% per annum if paid before maturity.
In case of dishonor, store and insure goods at our expense, cabling promptly.

Other types of instructions will be needed in certain cases and these will vary with circumstances. The objective should be to see that the collecting bank abroad is not left in doubt as to the action which he should take in possible or likely eventualities.

It is possible for collections to be drawn in such a way that interest is to be collected from the drawee over and above the face amount of the draft and where this is required, it should be enfaced on the draft itself by means of an appropriate clause, such as:

'Payable with interest at the rate of . . .% from date of draft to estimated arrival of return remittance in . . . .'

or 'Payable at the collecting bank's selling rate for sight drafts on Canada plus interest at the rate of . . . % from date of draft to estimated date of arrival of return remittance in Canada.'

If remittance is required by cable, the clauses would be changed appropriately. The rate of interest inserted is usually that common in the country of destination.

In many cases, if desired, collections can be discounted with Canadian banks at the time of lodgment and, when expressed in foreign exchange, the proceeds sold immediately to the Foreign Exchange Control Board. This disposes of the exchange risk if the draft is paid promptly but creates an exchange risk if the draft is dishonored. The availability for discount of a collection payable abroad depends, of course, upon the currency in which it is drawn, the term of the draft, the documents which are attached, but to a greater extent on the financial standing of the drawer and the drawee.

Risks of Fluctuation in Exchange Rates

The value in terms of Canadian dollars of all foreign currencies is subject to exchange fluctuations even under Control conditions as no one, not even Governments, can guarantee that current rates of exchange will remain unchanged over any stated period. To some extent these risks can be eliminated both under Control and open market conditions, by means of forward contracts. Canadians buying and selling goods abroad can enter into forward contracts with their banks for reasonable periods ahead when they have a firm contract with a buyer or seller abroad, and when a forward contract is entered into to deliver or take delivery of a stated amount of foreign exchange, the exchange risk is eliminated. Such contracts must, however, be completed and for the amount contracted. It is not possible to obtain a forward contract while open price quotations are in circulation prior to acceptance

Letters of Credit

Letters of Credit are extremely useful documents in financing foreign trade and the financing of a very large proportion of world trade is handled by that method. They are most adaptable and can be made to fit the requirements of almost any movement of goods under most circumstances. They vary, therefore, from country to country, from commodity to commodity, and between one method of shipment and another. While contracts in themselves, they do not constitute or replace sales contracts between buyers and sellers, but facilitate the carrying out of the latter. In all cases they carry an obligation of the issuer—in these days usually a bank—but the extent of these obligations varies from one credit to the next, and of course are no better than the standing and reputation of the issuer. It cannot, therefore, be taken for granted that every letter of credit is uniform with every other or that they remove all liability from the beneficiary.

They are at times irrevocable and at others revocable, at times carry the obligation only of the bank abroad, and at times carry the obligation not only of the bank abroad but also of a bank in Canada. They can be opened in such a way that the seller receives payment in Canada without further recourse on him, though never remove the responsibility for the sales contract to be duly and properly fulfilled. On the other hand, they may serve only the purpose of providing prompt cash in Canada with certain rights of recourse in some circumstances.

Their establishment by a bank abroad at the request of the buyer usually involves him in some expense and in the use of his credit, thereby adding some expense to the cost of the goods, so that they cannot, in face of competition, be requested in connection with every sale. The possibility of asking for payment in the form of a letter of credit should not, however, be overlooked and, if it is considered desirable that a letter of credit should be obtained, it is advisable to be somewhat specific in describing the type of letter of credit expected.

When details are received of a letter of credit which has been opened, it is important that its terms be studied and found acceptable. If unacceptable, request for amendment should be made immediately to the buyer so that no difficulty or delay will take place when the time comes to use the letter of credit. It is important also that the terms of the letter of credit be adhered to accurately and thoroughly since all letters of credit have an expiry date, either fixed in advance or at the pleasure of the issuer, and if the drafts and documents, upon presentation to a bank in Canada, are found out of order, the credit may have expired before the documents can be amended or corrected.

Space does not permit of a full description of the types of letters of credit or of all the documents for which they may call and the manner in which they should be prepared. In general, however, these documents must describe the goods at least as well as described in the letter of credit and must be in such negotiable shape that they control fully the eventual delivery of the goods, as well as guard against loss or damage while in transit. They rarely call for drafts on the buyer but usually for drafts on a particular bank and one of their important functions is to provide access to the principal money markets of the world so that interest costs involved are on an international level.

Abnormal Conditions

The foregoing deals almost entirely with export conditions as at May 1, 1945, with pre-war practice and procedure amended to meet general wartime conditions. It is conceivable that in the period immediately following the end of the war some entirely new procedures may become necessary and indeed there are already indications that substantial buyers in some war-ravaged countries needing goods which Canada can supply may have difficulty in completing transactions because of international exchange difficulties. In these cases it is not likely that Canadian producers will be prepared or able to extend the terms of their collections to periods of a year, two years or more, or that where financing of lengthy duration is involved ordinary Commercial Letters of Credit will be forthcoming despite their convenience and adaptability which normally protect the seller against international difficulties such as exchange restrictions, quotas, etc.

With this in mind, the Government of Canada has already passed an Export Credits Insurance Act and is participating in discussions leading to international monetary agreements on which import and export trade of the future may rest. Brief comments on these are given in the following paragraphs.

The Export Credits Insurance Act

Under this Act the Export Credits Insurance Corporation is formed to provide insurance against loss caused by insolvency, delays in collection and transfer difficulties in connection with the export of Canadian-produced goods and also, during the period of transition from war to peace, to provide for loans or guarantees to governments of other countries or their agencies.

The Corporation is not yet in full operation as there is much preparatory work to be done and its regulations and insurance rates are not yet available, but it should be of immense assistance to Canadian exporters in guarding against risks which heretofore it has not been possible to cover elsewhere, and should facilitate large contracts with government agencies of other countries where they need lengthy periods in which to provide payment.

It is expected that all Canadian exporters will be able to have their exports insured at low rates, but it is not compulsory. It does not mean that exporters, because of this insurance, will be able to take less care in the selection of their risks abroad or to dispense with letters of credit which otherwise would have been required. It is understood that the existing facilities of the banks for financing and collecting bills of exchange will continue to be used.

International Monetary Agreements

Discussions at the international level on this subject have been taking place for some time and tentative agreements have now been reached by accredited representatives of 44 nations on proposals for the formation of an International Monetary Fund and an International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. These proposals must now come before the legislations of the various countries to be dealt with. Before they can become operative, they require the support of the principal Allied Nations.

The principal purposes of the Fund, very briefly stated, are to promote international monetary co-operation, to facilitate the expansion and balanced growth of international trade, to promote exchange stability, to eliminate foreign exchange restrictions, and to provide other measures to correct maladjustments in international balance of payments without resorting to measures destructive of national or international prosperity.

The main purposes of the Bank, also in brief, are to assist in the reconstruction and restoration of economies destroyed or disrupted by war, the reconversion of productive facilities to peacetime needs, to promote private foreign investment, or to supplement this and by means of loans and guarantees to assist in bringing about a smooth transition from a wartime to a peacetime economy.

The eventual outcome of these proposals or others which may arise out of them will have an important bearing on the manner and success in financing international export trade in the years which follow the end of the war."

PRICE QUOTATIONS—FOREIGN TRADE DEFINITIONS

In making arrangements for sale of goods in a foreign market, one of the first steps to consider is a request to the seller from the buyer for the quotation of price on the goods. In an effort to define in a uniform manner certain well known terms generally used in making price quotations, there has been developed in various countries a set of rules or definitions which have been adopted by certain trade organizations and others setting out in some detail the obligations of seller and buyer having regard to particular terms. In the United States the National Foreign Trade Council Incorporated, the National Council of American Importers Incorporated, and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States on July 31, 1941, through a joint committee approved of what are known as "Revised American Foreign Trade Definitions—1941". It should be pointed out, however, that this approval while giving strong support to the use of these definitions in making price quotations, does not have the force of law, but where a price quotation in accordance with these definitions and a contract of sale is concluded with a statement that the price is subject to these definitions, it would have considerable force in determining what is understood by the parties to the contract in respect to such price quotation.

While reference is made to the "Revised American Foreign Trade Definitions—1941", it should at once be pointed out that foreign trade definitions have been issued by organizations in various parts of the world and the courts of different countries have interpreted these definitions in different ways. Consequently, it is important that sellers and buyers shall agree as to what is actually meant when a price quotation is made. In this way if the buyer in a foreign country, for example, having regard to a seller located in Canada, is familiar with definitions issued by an organization in the foreign country and the court decisions interpreting such definitions, it is desirable to have the matter clearly understood between buyer and seller as to what definitions apply in making the price quotation. The terms commonly used are "F.O.B". (Free On Board); "C.I.F". (Cost, Insurance, Freight);"F.A.S". (Free Along Side) and certain elaborations of these terms. There are, however, many other terms which are used, some of which are shown in the definitions previously referred to, while others are found in particular trades only.

Where definitions are not specifically stated and adopted by trade organizations for general use, it is necessary that a seller and buyer should specify exactly what is understood in respect thereto, indicating the obligations of both parties so that there may be no misunderstanding. In respect to "C.I.F." contracts, it should also be pointed out that the International Law Association adopted in 1928, (modified in 1931), what are known as "Warsaw-Oxford Rules". Consequently, an understanding of these rules is desirable in making "C.I.F." contracts.

In view of the foregoing very brief explanation of the importance of a mutual understanding between seller and buyer respecting price quotations, it will be seen that such matters should be given special attention and care so that the contract mutually agreed to will be clearly understood by both parties.

DEFINITIONS OF TECHNICAL ABBREVIATIONS USED IN FOREIGN TRADE AND EXCHANGE TRANSACTIONS

The following list includes some of the principal abbreviations used in ocean shipping, transportation, marine insurance, and foreign exchange, as well as a number referring to standards, gauges, threads, dimensions, electrical and engineering terms. It was compiled with the assistance of our members, marine insurance companies, banks and departments of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. It is hoped it will be useful both to Canadian exporters and importers of Canadian products abroad.

SOME YARDSTICKS FOR MEASURING ABILITY TO EXPORT

FIGURING EXPORT COSTS

This analysis by an expert on Export Costs is based on regulations in force May, 1945. It is published mainly as a guide.

In the industrial world, how often have you heard the question asked, "How can I export without a direct loss on every sale?" It is the consideration of this problem that will be dealt with in a general way in this article.

To start at the logical beginning, the first and foremost problem is to know your costs. Not the costs as you know them for the general domestic business and which are used as the basis for establishing domestic prices, but rather your "export costs," which are entirely different.

Let it be assumed here that the problem of entering into the export market arises after an industry has been firmly established to do business in its own country. This is fundamentally sound. It would not be considered entirely safe practice to work up a business which would have to rely entirely on a certain definite proportion of export business.

When a company is established, the primary desire of the management is to set Canadian selling prices so that there shall be the desired return on the capital invested arising out of the business to be secured in the home markets. This practice having been definitely established, it follows that export business might be considered in the light of extra volume which will in no way interfere with the domestic set up.

If this point of considering export business as an unexpected windfall and entirely additional to what has been planned to make the necessary return on the capital investment is kept in mind, it will then follow that export selling prices can be lower than those used in the home market and yet can show an economic profit as well.

Difference in Export Costs

It is true that if the financial statement is studied, an amazing number of red figures would be in evidence provided the same costs were used for both domestic and export sales. It is also true that there is the criticism of the domestic buyer that he has to pay a higher price for his product than he can perhaps buy it for in some export country. There are several answers to this reaction. If there were no exports the prices paid would remain as they always had been. Why then change the price just because exports happened to come along? The money received from exports makes the home country wealthier and part of this added wealth will find its way back, indirectly, into the pockets of the critics.

We, in Canada, are presently in the midst of abnormal wartime conditions which have caused us to expand our manufacturing production and our exports. It is probable that the demand for Canadian products will continue for sometime after the war to meet unfilled civilian requirements and rehabilitation needs abroad, but sooner or later we will be selling in a highly competitive international market and a knowledge of basic information in regard to export costs will be more essential than ever.

In considering export costs, there are many angles to be reckoned with. In view of what has been already discussed in the preceding paragraphs, it might be as well to see how the costs would be affected by just considering exports as unforeseen added volume. The expenses of an industrial organization may be broken down into several components such as: (1) Fixed Expenses, (2) Non-controllable Expenses, (3) Variable Expenses.

Analysis of Expenses

In the first group come such items as depreciation, taxes, insurance and expenses of a like nature. In the second group come the salaries and expenses of those permanently required to carry on the business. These expenses are very much the same as fixed charges except that they can fluctuate, but only within a narrow range. In this group would come the salaries of executives, superintendents, foremen, clerical staff, purchasing, material and accounting departments, etc.

The expenses of these two groups are constantly there. Therefore, whether the volume is large or small, these expenses go on just the same.

Referring to the last group, namely the Variable Expenses, these rise and fall in direct proportion to the productive effort - such items as factory supplies, material handlers' wages, electricity and water consumed and many other items required only when applied directly to the manufacturing operations.

Reviewing these various cost items, it is discovered that a basis can be arrived at which can be used as a yardstick for setting export selling prices. Tabulation of these cost factors would appear as follows:

(1) Material Costs
(2) Direct Labor Costs
(3) Variable Costs
(4) Total Basis for Establishing Export Selling prices
(5) Non-controllable Expenses
(6) Fixed Charges
(7) Total Domestic Cost Used for Establishing Domestic Selling Prices.

From the above illustration it would appear that a selling price for export based on item number four (4) above would create an economic profit even though such export selling price was lower than the domestic selling price.

This is the first step towards arriving at a basis for figuring export prices.

Origin of Materials

The next step to take is to examine the materials that are used for fabrication. Some are probably imported. Some are purchased in Canada. But do not stop there—trace the materials right back to their origin. They had to come out of the ground, and if the ground was Canada, that is as far as the quest for information leads, but if the search through the various stages shows that the basic materials have been imported, then this material—indirect though it may be—is as much an imported product as if it were imported direct by the exporting manufacturer.

Drawback Regulations

There are "Drawback Regulations" which are administered by the Canadian Government's Department of National Revenue or Customs Drawback Division. These regulations provide for the return of ninety-nine per cent. of all duties paid, upon satisfactory proof being submitted that the finished or semi-finished fabricated articles have been exported from the country. By taking advantage of this situation the duties that are paid on articles used in a completed or semi-completed article are practically all recovered, and, furthermore, all those indirect duties such as are in the various parts purchased from a Canadian supplier are also recoverable. These sources of reducing costs should not be overlooked. The results are often surprising, sometimes leading to the meeting of export prices which had heretofore been considered untouchable.

In a previous paragraph attention was drawn to the basis for establishing export selling prices. This is again emphasized, for any manufacturer in Canada who is supplying another manufacturer who in turn is actually exporting is as much an exporter as the exporter of the finished product. Therefore, in purchasing Canadian materials, the exporter has a right to expect that his supplier will give him a better export price than that given for his domestic business. It is "found" business. It cannot be overlooked that in bidding for export markets the competition of the whole world is invited. Prices must be right. If the co-operation of the suppliers is not given, the possibilities for exporting by the ultimate exporter become very poor. If, however, he is willing to look for exports on the basis previously outlined, every one of his associates will become partners with him in his foreign trade venture.

Comparison of Costs

Reviewing the various points that have been covered thus far, we might just see what an export cost would look like compared with a domestic cost. We will assume that an article costs one hundred dollars, which will be broken down into material, labor and all other expenses. We will also assume that thirty-five dollars is from domestic purchasers and thirty-two dollars and forty-eight cents represents direct importations. The first set up will be as follows:

Directly imported materials	$32.48
Foreign Exchange (11%)	3.57
	$36.05
War Exchange Tax (10%)	3.61
Duty on direct imports (25%)	9.01
		$ 48.67
Domestic purchases		35.00
Freight on materials		1.33
Direct labor		5.00
Variable expenses		5.00
		$ 95.00
Fixed and non-controllable expenses		5.00
		$100.00

It is now necessary to analyze the Canadian purchases to see where the basic materials are purchased and at what price these materials could be purchased for in any other country, choosing for this purpose the country which would quote the lowest figure and use that price (without duties added) as a basis for seeing how far these domestic prices have to be reduced so as to enable the exporter to meet world prices. At this point we will assume that the price of the Canadian purchases should be twenty-five dollars for export. This leaves the suppliers faced with a direct loss of ten dollars at first glance. Further analysis, however, would reveal that about six dollars and fifty cents of this amount might be recovered through duty drawbacks. This would leave only three dollars and fifty cents of a direct loss to be faced which is equivalent to a ten per cent. price reduction for export business. As this is new business, something over and above his usual anticipated volume, invariably the supplier can absorb this ten per cent. cut and still make an economic profit for his company.

The export costs are now beginning to take form, for on applying the above principle we now find the following results:

	Domestic Cost	1% of Duties	Less Rebates from Suppliers	Export Cost
Directly imported materials (including exchange)	$ 36.05			$36.05
War Exchange Tax and duties on direct imports	12.62	.13		.13
Canadian purchases less War Exchange Tax and duties	28.50		3.50	25.00
War Exchange Tax and duties paid on Canadian purchases	6.50	.07		.07
Total material cost	$ 83.67			$61.25
Freight on incoming materials	1.33			1.33
Direct labor	5.00			5.00
Variable Expenses	5.00			5.00
Fixed charges and non-controllable expenses	5.00			—
Manufacturing cost—basis for setting prices	$100.00			$72.58

The above illustration, therefore, shows that whereas the basis for establishing domestic selling prices is $100.00, the basis for establishing export selling prices is 28 per cent. lower.

Sales Tax has not been considered in these calculations as it does not apply to export business. In the event that Sales Tax has been paid at time of purchase of productive materials prior to manufacture, then such tax is subject to drawback.

Export boxing, inland and ocean freight will have to be considered, as well as ocean insurance, in all export calculations.

Apply any additional commercial expenses which will result from entering the "Export Field" and include in export final costs.

Having established these facts, it is then necessary to study the export markets, see what the other countries are charging for the commodity which it is desired to export—then if the competitive prices are such as to allow of an export selling price being set in excess of the "basis for establishing export selling prices" then it is profitable to go after the business for it will surely result in adding to the strength of your company by increased profits.

In dealing with the subject of exports, the Imperial Economic Conference brought about a closer union of the various members of the Empire through increased preferences. This condition brought very much to the fore the question of Empire content, for it was felt, and rightly too, that it was not desirable to have any one member of the Empire receive the advantages of these preferences if the amount of Empire content was negligible.

Some of the Empire countries have a very severe standard and it is not always known just how to go about the business of preparing figures which will satisfy the officials of the country to which the goods are being exported and also to satisfy the exporter. You must be very sure of your position before shipments are made. The standard that is usually accepted is this:- Take domestic costs (do not include packing), get from each one of the suppliers a certificate showing the duty paid and the value of the imported materials in his product, analyze your own costs and put imported materials on one side, including under this heading the summary obtained from the suppliers. Then make another column for domestic or Empire content. In this include (a) the residue from the domestic purchases after deducting the imported materials, duties and excise taxes; (b) freight on productive material but only a proper proportion—as the foreign freight will be considered under the import column; (c) productive labor; (d) factory overhead.

Referring back to the illustration given of a cost to be used as a basis for establishing export prices applying the principles as outlined in the preceding paragraph, the Empire content of this hypothetical illustration would work out as follows:

	War Exchange Tax and Duty	Imported	Domestic	Total
Direct importations	$12.62	$36.05		$ 48.67
Indirect importations	6.50	21.00	$ 7.50	35.00
Freight		1.17	.16	1.33
Direct labor			5.00	5.00
Overhead			10.00	10.00
	$19.12	$58.22	$22.66	$100.00

Summary

Imported Content	$58.22 — 72%
Canadian Content	22.66 — 28%

This illustration shows that if 25% Empire content were required, the conditions could be met, but if 50% was the standard, then the requirements could not be met. This example has been worked out so that it could be used as a yardstick for figuring Empire qualifications. "Exchange" paid on imported materials has been considered as an imported cost item and has therefore made the matter of qualifying more difficult.

A firm going into the export markets would do well to consider some of the points discussed. A great deal of information and assistance can be obtained from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association with its expert Service Departments ready to advise and assist manufacturers concerning the transportation of goods overseas, the tariff and other trading restrictions of importing countries, marine insurance, trade practices, trade statistics, credit information, translations, invoicing requirements and a multitude of other incidentals that constantly arise. A very valuable aid in establishing export markets is the service rendered by the Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa. This department is constantly in touch with the Canadian Trade Commissioners who are situated all over the world. It also keeps a thoroughly up-to-date record of all foreign and Empire tariffs.

Export trade properly developed is wealth. We all need the wealth—so the development of export markets should be the aim of all.

EMPIRE TARIFF PREFERENCES ON CANADIAN GOODS

(As of May, 1945)

As a result either of trade agreements or of tariff concessions otherwise granted, reduced duties are in force in various parts of the British Empire favouring goods of Canadian origin as compared with similar goods of non-British origin. These preferences are of very great importance to Canadian manufacturers and producers who are interested in export trade, and consequently there is given below a brief outline of the preferences enjoyed by Canada in these Empire markets, the Empire content necessary to entitle the goods to preferential treatment, and the value on which ad valorem duties are levied in the various parts of the Empire.

While it is true that Canada has most-favoured-nation trade agreements with many non-British countries, including most of those in Latin America, the United States and Great Britain have similar arrangements, and thus Canadian goods do not enjoy any better tariff treatment than do goods manufactured in Great Britain or the United States.

In the outline of Empire tariff preferences on Canadian goods there is no mention made of either import licensing systems of countries or Canadian export permit regulations. These are war measures and it is impossible to state what the situation will be in regard to same in peacetime. There is one exception, and that is in the case of New Zealand, which country instituted its import licensing system in 1938.

Export Drawback

In order that the sale of Canadian goods in the various countries of the world may not be handicapped by reason of payment of duties on materials imported into Canada, the Canadian Government allows a drawback of 99% of all duties and taxes paid on imported materials which are used or directly consumed in, wrought into, or attached to articles manufactured in Canada and subsequently exported.

UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND

Background of Empire Preferences in United Kingdom

As the United Kingdom is the most important preferential market for Canadian goods, it might be helpful to review briefly the adoption by the United Kingdom of the principle of Empire preferences.

The United Kingdom Finance Act of July 31, 1919, instituted Imperial preference within the scope of the limited tariff of that time. The entire tariff in 1919, however, comprised only about a score of articles. The tariff and consequent preferences expanded from year to year, but it was not until the Abnormal Importations (Customs Duties) Act of November 20, 1931, enacted for six months, giving extensive powers for taxing imports, that any considerable number of articles were subjected to import duty. Under this measure three orders were issued applying a tariff of 50 per cent ad valorem to many classes of foreign manufactures. Another emergency measure, passed on December 11, 1931, for one year, was authority for the issue of five orders imposing duties on foreign fruits, vegetables and flowers. Empire products were not taxed under either of these measures.

The Import Duties Act, assented to Feburary 29, 1932, imposed on all foreign goods not already taxed or named in a limited schedule of exemptions a rate of 10 per cent ad valorem. The Act created an Import Duties Advisory Committee with power to recommend increases in this rate with regard to particular goods. On reports from this Committee and Treasury Orders, rates have been increased to 15, 20, 25, 30, or 33⅓per cent on many articles. Products of the British Dominions, India and other parts of the Empire were exempted from the provisions of the Import Duties Act until November 15, 1932, their tariff treatment after that date to depend on the results of the then pending Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

Trade Agreement of 1932

At the conclusion of the Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa, on August 20, 1932, a trade agreement was signed between Canada and the United Kingdom. Among other things, the United Kingdom prolonged the exemption, during the life of the agreement, of Canadian goods from the Import Duties Act, and guaranteed specified margins of preference to Canada against foreign countries on seventeen items. Preferences established by similar agreements with other dominions are conceded automatically to Canada. Canada also enjoys the benefits of all tariff preferences existing in the Colonial Empire, with the exception of some local Rhodesian preferences. In return Canada increased the former preferences to the United Kingdom on 223 items.

As to Canadian concessions, it may be recalled that Canada, on April 23, 1897, had extended to United Kingdom goods a Reciprocal Tariff rate one-eighth lower than the General Tariff. The preference of one-quarter was incorporated in a purely British Preferential Tariff adopted by Canada, in 1898, when the Reciprocal Tariff was repealed. In 1900, the British preference was increased to one-third and was kept at practically one-third in the Tariff Act of 1907, which, with various amendments, is still in force.

From time to time the benefits of the British Preferential Tariff have been extended by Canada to other parts of the Empire and at present the British Preferential Tariff rates apply to imports from practically every part of the Empire.

Trade Agreement of 1937

On February 23, 1937, a new trade agreement with the United Kingdom was signed at Ottawa, to replace the 1932 agreement, and to remain in force subject to six months' notice of termination.

Preference Conditions including Empire Content

In order to qualify for preferential tariff treatment in the United Kingdom it must be shown to the satisfaction of the British Commissioners of Customs and Excise that goods have been (1) consigned from and (2) grown, produced, or manufactured in the British Empire. Goods regarded as "growth or produce" must have 100 per cent Empire content.

Manufactured tobacco and sugar are granted preference to the extent to which the raw material therein is shown to be Empire grown.

Optical goods and parts, including cameras, require an Empire content of 75 per cent of the factory or works cost.

An order, made effective April 1, 1933, prescribed an Empire content of 50 per cent of the factory or works cost for a selected list of manufactured goods including at that time, machinery, electrical goods, motor cars, metal furniture, various iron and steel products, rubber manufacturers, footwear, toys, toilet goods, and many other articles. There is a limited range of finished military supplies which have been exempted from duty and will continue to be so for a period as a war measure. Consequently, there is no Empire content necessary on these as there is no preference.

All other manufactured goods, not subject to the content requirements described above, including, for example; paper, textiles, foods, wood products, qualify for preference on an Empire content of 25 per cent of the factory or works cost. Parts or ingredients, dutiable under some measure other than the Import Duties Act, 1932, require separate certificate of origin from the actual producer of such parts or ingredients.

In regard to Empire content it may be pointed out that one of the provisions of the 1937 Trade Agreement states that neither Canada nor the United Kingdom will, without the consent of the other, increase the content requirement of any class of manufactured goods, for preference purposes, beyond 50 per cent.

In order for tariff preference to be given, it is necessary for the importer to establish that the goods were consigned from some part of the Empire to the United Kingdom and not to a foreign country from which they were subsequently reconsigned to the United Kingdom, but transshipment is allowed in a foreign port while the goods are en route to the United Kingdom.

Definition of Factory or Works Cost:

The value of manufactured goods for the purpose of determining the Empire content is defined as the cost to the manufacturer at the factory or works, and includes the value of containers and other forms of interior packing ordinarily sold with the article when it is sold retail. It does not include the manufacturer's or exporter's profit or their cost of exterior packing, carriage to the port, and other charges incidental to the export of the goods subsequent to their manufacture. Regulations issued July 27, 1933, state that the value of manufactured goods for determining Empire content shall not include any customs, excise, or other duty paid or payable in respect of materials received into the factory, when such duties are subsequently refunded on the exportation of the finished goods.

Value for Duty

Although most Canadian products enter the United Kingdom duty free, the law governing customs valuation is important on account of its effect where ad valorem duties are levied on competing goods. Generally speaking the value for United Kingdom customs duty purposes may be stated as the invoice cost (selling price) plus all charges to the port of importation in Great Britain.

IRISH FREE STATE (EIRE)

Tariff Preferences Extended to Irish Free State

The Irish Free State has always extended to Canada all the existing tariff preferences provided for under the tariff of that country.

At the Imperial Economic Conference an agreement was entered into between the Irish Free

State and Canada in 1932 which provides that goods, the produce or manufacture of Canada, imported into the Irish Free State, shall not be subject to other or higher duties than those paid on similar goods the produce or manufacture of any other country.

The Irish Free State has enjoyed, and continues to enjoy, the benefits of the British Preferential Tariff in respect of goods imported from the Irish Free State into Canada.

Preference Conditions — Empire Content

The preferential rates of duty in the Irish Free State are granted on condition that goods have been consigned from, and grown, produced or manufactured in a country forming part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Generally speaking, the minimum Empire content to entitle goods to preferential treatment is 25 per cent,—that is to say that not less than one-quarter of the factory or works cost of the article would have to be represented by Commonwealth material and/or labour; also, as in the case of importations into the United Kingdom, proof of direct shipment is required.

Special preferential rates on certain specific items which had been extended to the United Kingdom in 1938 apply to imports of such goods from Canada by virtue of the provisions of the trade agreement between Canada and Eire, provided the Canadian manufacturer can certify that the Canadian content (as distinguished from Commonwealth content) is not less than the percentage prescribed.

Value for Duty

Briefly stated, ad valorem duty is levied in the Irish Free State on the invoice cost (selling price) plus all carrying charges to the port of importation in that country.

AUSTRALIA

Trade Agreement of 1931

The first preferences obtained for Canadian goods in Australia arose out of a limited exchange of preferences effected by concurrent legislation in both countries, brought into force on October 1, 1925. This arrangement was superseded by a formal trade agreement, very comprehensive in scope, which became effective August 3, 1931.

Under Article I of the agreement, Canada concedes to Australia reductions in duty on various items, and on other goods grants the British Preferential Tariff.

Under Article II there is established a list of goods under which Canada is given the British Preferential, Intermediate, or other special tariff rates, and General Tariff rates of Australia. As respects any goods not classifiable under this listing, Australia extends to Canada the benefit of its British Preferential Tariff.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

Generally speaking, the minimum content prescribed by Australia for its British Preferential Tariff purposes is 75 per cent Canadian or Australian labour and/or material,—that is to say that not less than three-quarters of the factory or works cost of each article in its finished state is to be represented by Canadian or Australian labour and/or material.

There are certain categories of goods under which the content requirement is only 25 per cent and 50 per cent, the 25 per cent being the longer list, and these are, generally speaking, goods which have been deemed to be of a class or kind not manufactured in Australia.

Value for Duty

The value for both customs and primage duty on imports into Australia from Canada is, generally speaking, the home market value in Canada, or the actual money price paid for the goods by the Australian importer, plus transportation charges to the nearest border point from the place of production and the whole plus 10 per cent even if the goods leave Canada by a Canadian Atlantic or Pacific port. The Australian Customs authorities have issued a long list of places on or near the Great Lakes and the River St. Lawrence which they deem to be ports of exit for calculation of Australian customs duty.

On non-British goods the value for both customs and primage duty purposes in Australia is the home market value in the non-British country, or the actual money price paid for the goods by the Australian importer, plus transportation charges to the place where the goods leave that country and the whole plus 10 per cent.

NEW ZEALAND

Trade Agreement of 1932

New Zealand since 1903 has extended to Canada the benefit of Preferential rates of duty brought into force under successive tariff laws. In return Canada granted New Zealand British Preferential Tariff treatment.

Trade between Canada and New Zealand is now governed by formal trade agreement between the two countries which went into force May 24, 1932.

Articles I and II provided reciprocal exchange of British Preferential tariffs for goods not specified for other tariff treatment.

Canada concedes rates lower than its British Preferential Tariff on various articles of outstanding interest to New Zealand, and otherwise extends to her the British Preferential Tariff. In return, New Zealand grants her British Preferential Tariff rates to Canada with certain exceptions. Even in the case of those exceptions, the rates given to Canada are lower than the General Tariff rates.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

Generally speaking the minimum content prescribed by the New Zealand Customs for British Preferential Tariff purposes is 50 per cent,—that is to say that not less than one-half of the factory or works cost of each article in its finished state is to be represented by Canadian or other Empire labour and/or material.

In the case of Canadian motor vehicles, these are accorded British Preferential Tariff rates when having at least 75 per cent Canadian content, and Intermediate Tariff rates when having 50 per cent to 75 per cent Canadian content.

Value for Duty

Value for duty in New Zealand may be briefly stated as the fair market value in the country of export increased by 10 per cent.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

Canadian-South African Trade Agreement of 1932

Although Canada and South Africa have granted tariff preferences to each other since 1904, the first formal trade agreement between Canada and the Union of South Africa was signed at Ottawa on August 20, 1932.

Under Schedule A of this agreement there are 46 items on which Canada agrees to apply to South African goods either free entry, specified rates (some seasonal), or British Preferential rates. There is a guarantee on scheduled goods of lowest rates (excluding concessions to the British West Indies) and maintenance of margins of existing preference against foreign goods.

In regard to South African concessions to Canada, Canada retains all former margins of preference and is granted preferences on a number of additional commodities.

It should be emphasized that in the case of the Union of South Africa not every item in the Tariff carries a preferential or minimum rate of duty, but, to a large extent Canada secures the Minimum Tariff rates where same are in force. There are some items on which the United Kingdom gets the Minimum Tariff and Canada does not. As a general rule goods of non-British origin entering the Union of South Africa are subject to the Intermediate Tariff rates which are also given to Canada where Minimum rates do not apply.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

According to the wording of the Union of South Africa Customs Act, that country requires a minimum 25 per cent Canadian content for tariff preference purposes,—that is to say that not less than one-quarter of the factory or works cost of each article is to be represented by Canadian labour and/or material.

Value for Duty

The value of goods for purposes of duty in the Union of South Africa is the domestic value, plus the extra cost of packing and packages for export, carriage to the port of shipment and all other expenses incidental to placing the goods on board ship ready for exportation, but generally speaking in no case less than the free-on-board cost of the goods to the importer, including agents' or buying commission in excess of 5 per cent.

'Domestic value' is the market price at which at the time of exportation, goods are freely offered for sale for consumption in the principal markets of the exporting country to all purchasers in the usual wholesale quantities, in the ordinary course of trade, including the cost of ordinary packages but not including excise duties payable in that country.

BASUTOLAND, BECHUANALAND, SWAZILAND, SOUTH-WEST AFRICA AND WALVIS BAY

The tariff situation in the above-mentioned countries is the same as the Union of South Africa.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA

Canada-Southern Rhodesia Trade Agreement of 1932

A formal trade agreement between Canada and Southern Rhodesia was signed at Ottawa on August 20, 1932, but was terminated on January 2, 1938.

Southern Rhodesia, however, accords Canada and the United Kingdom the same preferences over foreign countries on slightly over half of the 331 items constituting the tariff. On one-quarter of the items, the United Kingdom is granted lower rates than Canada, but on nearly the whole schedule of duties Canada has a lower rate than applies to foreign countries.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

In order for tariff preference to be granted in Southern Rhodesia, a 25 per cent Empire content is required,—that is to say that not less than one-quarter of the factory or works cost of each article in its finished state is to be represented by Canadian or other Empire labour and/or material.

Value for Duty

Generally speaking, the value for duty in the case of goods imported into Southern Rhodesia is the domestic value as defined below plus the extra cost of packing and packages for export and the carriage to port of shipment, provided that in no case shall the value for duty be less than the free-on-board price of goods to the importer, including agents or buying commission in excess of 5 per cent.

'Domestic value' is defined as the market price at which at the time of exportation such or similar goods are offered for sale, for comsumption in the country from which the goods are exported, to all purchasers in wholesale quantities in the ordinary course of trade in the principal markets of such country, including the cost of packages ordinarily used in those markets, but less any drawback or remission of duty granted by the Government of the exporting country on exportation.

NORTHERN RHODESIA

Northern Rhodesia has two Customs zones. The area known as the Congo Basin zone is part of territory for which an "open door" policy (that is equality of trade for all nations) was established by the Berlin Act of 1885. In this portion of Northern Rhodesia, therefore, non-British goods enter at the same rate of duty as British and other Empire goods.

The Zone known as the Zambesi Basin has in force a Preferential Tariff, which is accorded to Canada, the United Kingdom and other British countries. Canadian goods having the prescribed content requirement enter under the Preferential Tariff of Northern Rhodesia. Non-British goods are subject to the General Tariff rates.

The Preferential Tariff rates of the Zambesi Basin constitute the Customs Tariff of the Congo Basin, and are applicable to all countries.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

As in the case of the United Kingdom, there is a long list of goods for which a minimum Empire content of 50 per cent is prescribed in order for goods to receive tariff preference on importation into the Zambesi Basin of Northern Rhodesia. Generally speaking, any goods not covered by any heading in this list only require 25 per cent Empire content. However, optical goods and parts, including cameras, require a 75 per cent Empire content.

As there are no tariff preferences in the Congo Basin of Northern Rhodesia, there is no minimum content requirement.

Value for Duty

Similar conditions exist as regards value for duty in Northern Rhodesia as in the case of the Union of South Africa, given above.

BRITISH INDIA AND BURMA

There are no tariff preferences for Canadian goods entering British India or Burma. Both Canadian and non-British goods are subject to the same tariff rates.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

Since there is no preference in British India or Burma for Canadian goods, minimum Empire content does not come into the picture.

Value for Duty

(a) British India

Generally speaking, the value for levying ad valorem duty on goods imported into British India is the value shown on the invoice, provided that it is the ordinary landed cost of goods of like kind and quality, that there is no special relationship between seller and buyer, and that the price is unconditionally bound to any buyer. Frequently percentages are added to invoice values to cover landing and similar incidental charges. There are, however, for Indian Customs purposes, fixed valuations for certain commodities subject to ad valorem duty.

(b) Burma

Ad valorem duties in Burma are levied on the "real value" of the goods unless the article has an official tariff value assigned to it. In a letter of December 30, 1938, addressed to the Canadian Trade Commissioner in Calcutta by the Collector of Customs at Rangoon, "real value" as regards imports into Burma is defined as follows:

> "Real value is the wholesale cash price at which similar goods are being sold or are capable of being sold at the time and place of importation less trade discount and duty ordinarily payable on importation and, when such price is not ascertainable, the cost at which similar goods could be delivered at such places less trade discount."

NEWFOUNDLAND

As far as Customs Tariff rates are concerned there are no preferences for Canadian goods entering Newfoundland over non-British goods.

However, there is a small preference in Newfoundland for Canadian goods by reason of the premium on United States dollars, whereas Canadian dollars are on a parity with Newfoundland dollars as described below.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

Although there are no preferential tariff rates accorded Canadian goods entering Newfoundland there is a certificate of origin clause in the invoice form prescribed by Newfoundland and Canadian exporters have to state the percentage of Canadian content, the minimum requirement of which is 25 per cent. This certificate of origin is required to be completed for Canadian goods claiming entry under the Intermediate Tariff.

Value for Duty

Ad valorem duty is levied on the current domestic value of the goods in the principal markets of the country whence and at the time when the goods were exported directly to Newfoundland, but such value shall not include any excise or internal revenue duty payable on such goods in the country from which they were exported.

In 1939 the Newfoundland Board of Customs ordered that in computing the value of goods imported into Newfoundland, the United States dollar is to be converted at $1.10. The Canadian and Newfoundland dollars are of equal value and therefore there is no premium in regard to exchange in computing the value for duty in so far as Canadian goods are concerned. In respect to United Kingdom goods the pound sterling is converted at $4.45.

BRITISH WEST INDIES

Trade Agreement between Canada and the British West Indies

The present trade relations between Canada and the British West Indies are governed by the trade agreement of July 6, 1925, which was brought formally into force by proclamation as from April 30, 1927.

List of Countries Comprising the British West Indies

As a general rule there are tariff preferences for Canadian goods over non-British goods entering the various colonies comprising the British West Indies. The following are the countries included under the heading of the British West Indies: Bahamas; Barbados; Bermuda; British Guiana; British Honduras; Jamaica; Cayman Islands*; Turks and Caicos Islands; Leeward Islands—Antigua, Dominica, Montserrat, St. Christopher-Nevis, Virgin Islands; Trinidad and Tobago; Windward Islands—Grenada, St. Lucia, St. Vincent.

Note: As respects the Cayman Islands there are not as many preferences as in the case of the other British West Indies colonies.*

Duty-Free Lists

The tariffs of the British West Indies colonies have duty-free lists, usually including goods for Colonial Governments, military or naval purposes, municipalities, churches, educational institutions, hospitals or certain organizations of a public nature. These duty-free lists apply to all countries, and while the provisions are not the same in all the colonies the general effect is about as indicated. Although these duty-free lists are mentioned, it should be borne in mind that the rates of duty in both the British Preferential and General Tariffs apply in the case of merchandise imported in the usual way for commercial purposes. Some articles, of course, are duty-free no matter for what purpose they are imported.

Preference Conditions—Content Requirement

Goods qualify for preferential tariff treatment in the British West Indies colonies, including Bermuda, British Guiana, British Honduras, when grown, produced, or manufactured, within the areas entitled to preference and consigned therefrom to the colonies.

In the case of Bermuda, Cayman Islands and the Turks and Caicos Islands, the minimum content requirement for tariff preference purposes is 25 per cent,—that is to say, not less than one-quarter of the factory or works cost of each article in its finished state must be represented by Canadian or other Empire labour and/or material.

In the case of the other colonies, however, there is an extensive list of goods (as in the case of the United Kingdom) for which the Empire content requirement is 50 per cent.

However, in order for optical glass, optical instruments and their component parts to be granted tariff preference in all the colonies of the British West Indies with the exception of Bermuda, Cayman Islands and the Turks and Caicos Islands, there is required a minimum Canadian or other Empire content of 75 per cent.

Value for Duty

In Bahamas, British Guiana, British Honduras, Cayman Islands, Dominica, Grenada, Jamaica, Montserrat, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, and Trinidad and Tobago, the value for duty of imported goods is the selling price to the West Indies importer, plus transportation costs to the destination, i.e., c.i.f. port of entry.

In Antigua, Barbados, Bermuda, St. Christopher-Nevis, Turks and Caicos, and Virgin Islands, the value for duty purposes is held to be the selling price of the goods to the West Indies importer, f.o.b. factory in the country of export.

OTHER COUNTRIES IN THE BRITISH EMPIRE

In various other colonial territories and protectorates there are tariff preferences, and in order to secure the benefit of same the conditions prescribed for tariff preference in each colony would have to be observed. In a number of these countries, as in the case of Great Britain, there is a long list of goods for which a 50 per cent Empire content is required before tariff preference is accorded, and other goods are, generally speaking, subject to only a 25 per cent Empire content requirement. In some colonies, however, the content requirement is only 25 per cent for all goods.

There is given below a list of the British Colonies and Protectorates which grant preference to Canadian goods. In some of these countries there are preferences on practically all goods, in others a great number of items enjoy tariff preferences, and in the case of the Falkland Islands, Gibraltar, and Hong Kong, there are preferences on only a few articles.

British North Borneo
British Somaliland
British Solomon Islands
Brunei
Hong Kong
Isle of Man
Malay States—Federated
Malay States—Unfederated

EXPORT TRADE SERVICES AND POLICY OF THE CANADIAN MANUFACTURER'S ASSOCIATION

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, with its expert Service Departments, is in a particularly strong position to assist its members in developing Export Trade.

At the same time, with its 10 offices throughout Canada, it is able to give a unique service to the representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada.

More than 1200 firms in the membership of the Association are interested in export, and almost all of these were active exporters before the war. Many hundreds of the Association's members are importers of materials and equipment to a lesser or greater degree. This helps to pay for exports.

Service Departments

Established nearly 75 years ago, the Association's growth has paralleled that of manufacturing industry and export trade in Canada and it has built up Service Departments with a background of experience and information extending over many years. Indeed, export trade is specifically mentioned as a prime object of the Association in its Constitution, which provides that "The objects of this Association shall be to promote Canadian industries and to further the interests of Canadian manufacturers and exporters, and to render such services and assistance to the members of the Association and to manufacturers and exporters generally, as the Association may deem advisable from time to time".

There are many complications connected with doing export business. Questions concerning the transportation of goods overseas, the tariffs and other trading restrictions of importing countries, marine insurance, trade practices, trade statistics, credit information, translations, invoicing requirements and a multitude of other incidentals constantly arise.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, through its Tariff, Transportation, Legislation, Industrial Relations, Commercial Intelligence, Insurance and Publishing Departments can be of great help in solving these problems. These Departments are managed by experts, who have had long experience in their respective fields and who, with their assistants, are able to render a comprehensive service to members, covering all phases of export business.

The Commercial Intelligence Department is the Department having particular charge of export trade matters. It operates under a Commercial Intelligence Committee, which in turn has set up a Sub-committee on Export Trade, composed of 20 members, who are actively engaged in the export of goods. Under the guidance of the Commercial Intelligence Committee and of this Sub-committee, the Association advocates and presses for the adoption of those policies which will further the export business of its members.

The London, England, office of the Association, i.e., The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain Inc., handles a variety of matters relating to Anglo-Canadian trade.

The Canadian Trade Index

The Association performs a particularly valuable service in the interests of Canadian export trade by compiling and publishing annually "The Canadian Trade Index," a volume of over 900 pages, containing a complete list of all Canadian manufacturers with a carefully classified list of their products, together with much other useful information with respect to all phases of export trade. With the co-operation of the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, copies of "The Canadian Trade Index" are distributed to hundreds of importers in overseas countries through the offices of the Canadian Government Trade Commissioners.

Meetings and Conferences

The Association holds frequent meetings, large and small, to hear addresses on export trade, to entertain visitors from overseas, to discuss export problems and kindred matters and generally to promote the interests of Canadian exporters. At Annual General Meetings, largely attended Conferences on Export Trade are organized.

An Invitation to Visitors

A cordial invitation is extended to the representatives of overseas firms visiting Canada to call at the Head Office or any of the other offices of the Association and to make use of all the facilities provided, particularly those arranged to put them quickly in touch with Canadian exporters.

It is suggested as a preliminary that intending visitors to Canada should get in touch with Canadian Government Trade Commissioners in their respective territories and, if possible, arrange to advise the Association in advance of the probable date of their arrival and the types of goods in which they are especially interested.

Policy on Export Trade

Throughout the course of the war the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and its Committees have emphasized that war production must take precedence over all else. Nevertheless, war produc-of necessity, has had to be tied up with civilian production, priorities and control of materials, and certain phases of foreign trade. In connection with foreign trade, a continuing study has been made of United Nations controls of materials and the international currency situation. The Association has maintained close co-operation with the Department of Trade and Commerce, the Department of Finance, the Department of Munitions and Supply, the Canadian Mutual Aid Board, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, the Foreign Exchange Control Board, as well as the activities of the various Combined Boards and Supply Missions in North America. As industry and foreign trade are readjusted to a peace-time basis, some knowledge of this background as well as of the existing complex regulations is necessary in interpreting new developments.

The Association stands for and advocates the greatest possible trade between nations. It is obvious that the number of people employed in Canada after the war will depend to a great extent on the volume of post-war export trade. Even before the war, about one-third of Canada's national income was derived from the export of goods and services.

The Association believes that the extent of Canada's post-war export Trade will depend, to a great degree, upon the ingenuity and hard work of the many thousands of Canadian firms and individuals engaged in the export of food-stuffs, raw materials, manufactured goods, and services. Exporters must have all possible knowledge of the trade practices and requirements covering export shipments and it is for this reason that the Association has paid so much attention to its specialized departmental services which were begun so many years ago, and which have continuously expanded to keep abreast of the times.

In the increasingly complex modern world, however, government policy plays a growing part. Canadian Governments have always displayed a keen interest in the problems of exporters, and, wherever and whenever necessary, the Association has placed the views of exporters before the Government. In passing, it might be mentioned that commencing in 1901 the Association has made strong representations to the Government to establish and expand a Dominion Canadian Trade Commissioner Service. Down through the years the Association has co-operated particularly closely with the Department of Trade and Commerce and the Trade Commissioner service.

INDUSTRIAL CHANGES IN CANADA AS INDICATED BY THE 1945 CANADIAN TRADE INDEX

As a result of wartime controls the manufacture of a number of civilian products has been restricted or discontinued during the last year. It was decided, however, to leave the question of listing these products to the decision of individual firms, and it will be found that most of the classifications have been retained in the present edition. These firms have the experience and equipment to manufacture and supply the products to domestic and export markets when industrial and trade controls are relaxed. Following is a short summary of the various changes in the 1945 edition:

New Firms	241	Small Changes in firm name and address	371
Firms Deleted	110	New Headings	80
Changes of Name	96	Headings Deleted	66
Changes of address and location	216	Headings Changed	49

Explanation of List

THE list beginning on the opposite page comprises the names and addresses, alphabetically arranged, of all firms appearing in the classified section of the Canadian Trade Index. In this list we have tried to give the users of the book some information that will be useful in getting into quick touch with the makers of any desired article.

No street addresses are given in Part III (the classified article section). These are recorded where necessary to complete the address in Part II (the alphabetical list).

We have not attempted to give, in this list, any full account of the products. These will all be found under separate headings in the classified section on pages 393 and following. Where the firm or company name does not indicate clearly the line of goods manufactured, some of the main articles produced, or the nature of the firm's business, are mentioned.

The address given is that of the main place of business in Canada, usually the head office, although it may be both factory and office address. The addresses given later, under "Factories," "Mills," or "Plants" are generally those of branch factories. Branch offices also are given.

For. Rep. or simply Rep. means foreign or other representative for export sales purposes.

The Cable addresses and codes will be found useful in initiating and transacting export business.

Names of new firms received too late for listing in the main body of the blue section will be found under "Additions" at the end of this section.

Guide to Classified Index

THE method of indexing the material on the succeeding pages is that by which the most important word in headings is generally placed first. The arrangement then proceeds in the proper alphabetical order. In the majority of cases it will be found that the noun or main name comes first, i.e.—Furniture, bedroom; Hardware, builders; Leather, boot and shoe upper, etc. This allows the grouping of all similar articles close together. In other cases, where the inversion seems unnatural, the headings have been listed as they run—air appliances; fire escapes, etc. If any difficulty is experienced in locating desired headings or articles, users of the book should try both forms of listing. This will enable the heading to be found if it appears in the book at all.

In all cases we have endeavored to use the names most commonly known. It is possible that we have listed some products and materials under names that differ from those that our subscribers use. Synonyms will therefore be useful to bear in mind.

Cross references have been supplied where two or more names are commonly used to describe the same article.

Street addresses of the firms listed in the classified section are provided where necessary in the alphabetical list of names (on blue sheets) immediately preceding the Classified Section (Part III, pages 393 to 800a).

Attention is also called to the French Index of articles, which is placed immediately after the Produce Section (Part IV, pages 800c to 800i). In limited editions a Spanish Index or a Portugeuse Index appears following the French Index.

Firms before whose name an asterisk appears are engaged or seriously interested in Export Trade. However, due to war conditions, many of these firms have discontinued or greatly restricted their export business.

Similarly because of the change over to war production and the consequent allocation of raw materials to war goods, some of the products listed on the following pages may not be available at the present time.

We shall be glad to have the opportunity of giving additional information to any manufacturer or user of the Canadian Trade Index. No charge is made for this service.
